DANIEL D. TOMPKINS, GOVERNOR.

Daniel D. Tompkins, fourth governor of New York, was born at the Fox Meadows, in the present town of Scarsdale, Westchester county, June 21, 1774; graduated from Columbia College 1795; admitted to the bar 1797; delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1801; elected to the assembly of 1803; elected to congress in 1804, he never took his seat, for he was appointed July 2, 1804, to the Supreme Court bench to succeed James Kent, appointed chief justice in place of Morgan Lewis, elected governor; governor of the state 1807–1817; in command of the third United States military district during the second war with Great Britain; vice-president of the United States 1817–1825; unsuccessful candidate for governor against DeWitt Clinton in 1820; delegate to and president of the Constitutional Convention of 1821; died at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, June 11, 1825, aged fifty-one years. 1807.

The thirty-first session of the legislature began January 26, 1808. Dr. Alexander Sheldon of Montgomery, a supporter of DeWitt Clinton, was chosen speaker of the assembly. February 1st the new Council of Appointment, all followers of Mr. Clinton, took charge of the state's patronage: Benjamin Coe of Orange, Peter C. Adams of Green, John Veeder of Schenectady, and Nathan Smith of Ulster. The Council began proceedings by restoring Mr. Clinton to the mayoralty of New York and all his friends to the offices which they had lost the year before. March 18th the Council appointed to office three men who afterward became prominent in civil life in the state and nation: John W. Taylor, later speaker of the House of Representatives, and Samuel Young, later speaker of the assembly, state senator and unsuccessful candidate for governor against De Witt Clinton, in 1824 were appointed justices of the peace of Ballston, and Martin Van Buren was appointed surrogate of Columbia county. The patronage of the state was thoroughly revolutionized before the end of the year.

The legislature that was elected in April met at the state capitol for a week's session November 1, 1808, for the purpose of choosing presidential electors. James W. Wilkin of Orange was selected as speaker of the assembly. A strong sentiment prevailed to instruct the electors from New York in favor of George Clinton for president of the United States, but in the end the electors were chosen without reference to their individual preferences. By the result of the general election James Madison of Virginia was chosen president and George Clinton of New York vice-president.

National politics had entered largely into the situation in New York during the campaigns of 1809–1810, the Federal party taking on new life from the supposed errors of the national administration. For the first time in a decade the Federalists controlled a majority in the Assembly, where William North of Schenectady was chosen Speaker. The session of the legislature began January 30th. The Federalists lost no time in selecting a new Council of Appointment. They labored, however, under one disadvantage, for their party was not represented by a senator in the southern and middle districts. As constituted, the Council was composed of two Republicans, Isaac Carll of Suffolk and Robert Williams of Dutchess, and Daniel Paris of Montgomery and Amos Hall of Ontario, Federalists. Mr. Williams eventually cooperated with the Federalists in their patronage onslaughts upon their opponents. At the first meeting a number of dictatorial changes were made: Abraham Van Vechten of Albany was appointed attorney-general; Daniel Hale of Albany, secretary of state; Jacob Radcliff, mayor; Josiah Ogden Hoffman, recorder; John W. Mulligan, surrogate, and Cadwalader D. Colden, district attorney of New York. Theodore V. W. Graham was made mayor of Albany. Thomas J. Oakley of Dutchess, the son-in-law of Mr. Williams, was rewarded with the position of surrogate of Dutchess in place of James Tallmadge, removed. Wherever the majority of the Council could substitute one of their adherents for a Republican, the change was promptly made. Republicans holding office as judges, sheriffs, surrogates, county clerks, district attorneys, and justices of the peace were made to realize the power of this colossal engine and were ruthlessly removed, merit, fidelity, ability counting as naught.

With increasing confidence in their ability to elect a governor of their party in April, the Federalists on January 5th formally nominated Jonas Platt of Oneida for governor, and later Nicholas Fish of New York, a distinguished soldier of the Revolutionary war, for lieutenant-governor. One month later, February 5th, the Republicans, at a legislative caucus, renominated Governor Tompkins and Lieutenant-Governor Broome. The Republicans were successful at the April election. The following August Lieutenant-Governor Broome died, John Tayler acting as lieutenant-governor.

STATE.

John Mascraft, deputy commissary of military stores, vice John Vernor, superseded. 1810. March 31.

On January 29, 1811, the legislature assembled. Nathan Sanford of New York was elected Speaker of the Assembly by the Republican majority. January 30th the new Council of Appointment of Republicans took the place of their Federalist predecessors, who had carried such devastation among office holders the year before. The new Council were: Benjamin Coe of Rockland, James W. Wilkin of Orange, John McLean of Washington, and Philetus Swift of Ontario. The Council proceeded to emulate the example of their predecessors in the process of removals, and, if anything, surpassed them in the expedition, thoroughness and decisiveness with which they acted.

Mr Sanford, the Speaker of the Assembly, resigned his position February 14th, owing to impaired health; William Ross of Orange county was elected as his successor.

The legislature February 11th having passed a special act providing for the election of a lieutenant governor, the office having become vacant by the death of John Broome, a legislative caucus of Republicans was held March 14, at which De Witt Clinton, then mayor of New York, was awarded the nomination. The election was held in April and resulted in a victory for Mr. Clinton over Colonel Marinus Willett, who had been nominated by the faction of Republicans in New York city known as "the Martling Men," and Colonel Nicholas Fish, the candidate of the Federalists.

April 8, 1811, the legislature passed an act appointing Gouverneur Morris, Stephen Van Rensselaer, De Witt Clinton, William North, Simeon De Witt, Thomas Eddy, Peter B. Porter, Robert R. Livingston and Robert Fulton commissioners for taking into consideration all matters relating to inland navigation and authorizing them to apply to Congress or to any State or Territory to co-operate with New York in the project of developing and improving navigation between the tide-water of the Hudson river and the great western lakes. Congress refused to lend any co-operation in the matter.

1811. February 1.

Resolved, that Solomon Van Rensselaer be no longer adjutant general of the militia of this State, and that a supersedeas issue accordingly.

STATE.

John Vernor, deputy commissary of military stores, vice John Mascraft, superseded. 1811. February 21.

RENSSELAER COUNTY.

Major Thomas Davis, of Rensselaer county, attended pursuant to notice to answer to charges contained in a memorial presented to the Council by Stephen Clark, complaining of Major Davis and Captain E. W. Wallbridge for having combined to procure him to be superseded as lieutenant in Colonel (Adam) Yates' regiment by false representations injurious to his character, on the last annual return of vacancies and promotions for Colonel Yates' regiment, and with improper motives. Major Davis denied having any agency in making the return alluded to by which Mr. Clark was intended to be injured in his rank and character, and Captain Eben W. Wallbridge appearing before the Council as a witness in his behalf declared that he made the return for the company of which he is captain for the year 1810, complained of by Mr. Clark, without any interference, advice or concert whatever, of or with Major Davis, and that he, Captain Wallbridge, was alone responsible for that return, and that he should be able to justify himself and maintain the correctness and truth of the said return whenever an opportunity was given therefor; whereupon it was Resolved, that the said memorial of Stephen Clark be dismissed as unfounded, so far as the same implicates Major Davis. 1811. March 18.

Captain Wallbridge being consulted as to what time it would be convenient to answer to the said memorial in relation to his own conduct observed that any day next week would be convenient for him; whereupon RESOLVED, that the Council will on Monday, the

ONTARIO COUNTY.

1812. January 30.

Resolved, that William Howe Cuyler be no longer major commandant of a battalion of riflemen in the county of Ontario, and that a supersedeas be issued accordingly.

Lieutenant Colonel William Burnet's regiment:

Jacob Barkenstoes, paymaster, vice (Thomas) Powel, moved; John Hall, quartermaster, vice J. Barkinstoes (Joseph Backenstoes), declined.

The historical session of the legislature of 1812 began January 28th. In the assembly Dr. Alexander Sheldon, the Republican candidate, was elected Speaker. The Council of Appointment, who were chosen February 1st, were all friends of De Witt Clinton, namely, William W. Gilbert of New York, Johannis Bruyn of Ulster, Henry Yates, junior, of Schenectady, and Francis A. Bloodgood of Oneida.

March 27th Governor Tompkins prorogued the legislature until May 21st, because of proof that had come to his knowledge that the applicants for the six million dollar bank of America in New York city had used or attempted to use corrupt means to secure a charter.

At the height of the tumult in the Republican party, in consequence of this act, the April elections were held, and that party accordingly suffered. The moribund Federalist party managed to secure control of the assembly by a small majority. April 20th, the venerable Vice-President, George Clinton, died at Washington. Two months later the legislature adjourned, and on June 18th, the Congress declared war against Great Britain.

A special session of the legislature was convened November 3d for the purpose of selecting presidential electors. Jacob Rutsen Van Rensselaer of Columbia, Federalist, was chosen Speaker over William Ross of Orange. A revolt occurred in the assembly over the proposition that the electors should vote for De Witt Clinton. Martin Van Buren, who had been elected to the senate from the middle district in April, now displayed for the first time the talent he possessed to a great degree for political manipulation. It was largely through his industrious and persistent efforts that a Clinton ticket was adopted on joint ballot, in spite of the recession of General Erastus Root and other prominent Republicans.

Under the act of June 10, 1812, made necessary by the United States census of 1810, a new congressional apportionment was arranged by the legislature, the New York delegation now numbering twenty-one, against fifteen under the act of March 8, 1808. From 1789 to March 23, 1797, the congressional districts were not numbered; from the fifth to the eighth Congress the delegation numbered ten. By the act of March 30, 1802, the increase in population justified the increase in the number of the delegation to seventeen, which was maintained by the act of March 20, 1804.

It having been represented by his Excellency the Governor that from information received by him from Major General (John) Hathorn, that John B. Van Wyck, esquire, had tendered to him his resignation of the office of brigadier general of the thirtieth brigade of infantry of this State, which resignation Major General Hathorn had declined accepting. And whereas it appears from a variety of information received from persons residing in the county of Dutchess that the said John B. Van Wyck had for some time past omitted to perform the duty of a brigadier under an allegation of his having resigned the said office, and it appearing also from a letter which the Commander-in-chief has received from Captain Fyler Dibblee, that General Van Wyck had declared to him that he would not pay attention to a general order* appointing him president of a board of officers to settle rank between the said Fyler Dibblee and (Major) Gilbert Ketchum, and that he had not attended to such orders for some time past; therefore RESOLVED, that the said John B. The regular session of the legislature began January 12, 1813. The same day the Council of Appointment was chosen, namely: Peter W. Radcliff of New York, James W. Wilkin of Orange, John Stearns of Jefferson, and Jonas Platt of Oneida—all Federalists except General Wilkin, whose district, the middle, happened to be represented exclusively by Republicans. Although the new Council was extremely partisan in spirit, it displayed conservatism in its actions. It succeeded in lodging Federalists in every position that had been held by a Republican, but in the general displacements the friends of DeWitt Clinton were not overlooked. He himself was reappointed mayor of New York in spite of the protest of the member from that city, Mr. Radcliff. Thomas Addis Emmett was removed from the office of attorney general and was succeeded by Abraham Van Vechten of Albany.

February 4th the Republican legislators in caucus renominated Governor Tompkins without a dissenting voice, but substituted John Tayler, of Albany, instead of DeWitt Clinton, for lieutenant governor. A week later the Federalists nominated General Stephen Van Rensselaer, of Albany, for governor and George Huntington, of Oneida, for lieutenant governor.

The result of the April election was a severe shock to the Federalists, whose gubernatorial candidate was defeated by 3,406 votes, in spite of the assistance they had received from Republicans who were disgruntled with the national and jealous of the state administrations. They managed, however, to hold control over the Assembly by a narrow majority.

The thirty-seventh session of the Legislature opened at Albany January 25, 1814. James Emott of Dutchess, Federalist, was elected Speaker over William Ross of Orange, the Republican candidate. The new Council of Appointment was chosen the same day: Morgan Lewis of Dutchess, Samuel Stewart of Saratoga, Elbert H. Jones of Queens, and Henry A. Townsend of Steuben. Messrs. Lewis and Townsend were the Republican representatives, Messrs. Jones and Stewart the Federal; the Federalists having been forced to select Mr. Townsend because there was not a Federal senator in either the middle or western districts. The most important appointment considered by the Council this year was that of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Chancellor Lansing had become ineligible by the age limit and Chief Justice James Kent had succeeded to the position. From this situation grew a tangle of politics that led to all sorts of complications and personal disagreements. Many of the Federalists favored the appointment of General Jonas Platt of Oneida. But former Governor Lewis, to the surprise of many of his old friends, joined with Governor Tompkins in a movement to defeat General Platt's ambition. They relied for reinforcement upon Senator Townsend, who though elected to the Council by the Federalists, had been originally returned to the Senate in 1810 as a Republican and who was regarded as Mr. Clinton's personal representative in the Council. In order to complicate still further the situation and to show, if possible, to what extent DeWitt Clinton was intriguing in this judicial contest, Mr. Lewis, who had not forgiven Mr. Clinton for his antagonism to him while he was Governor, and for the part he had played in defeating him for renomination, moved in the Council the appointment for judge of the Supreme Court Richard Riker, who had been DeWitt Clinton's second in the Swartwout duel, and who had been a faithful and subservient friend from that time. Whatever the motive or the politics, the result was the defeat of Mr. Riker and the appointment of General Platt.

At this session of the Legislature a bill was passed granting to Union College the sum of $200,000, in addition to former grants. Generous appropriations were also made to Columbia and Hamilton colleges, to the New York Historical Society and to other educational and scientific institutions.

An extraordinary session of the Legislature was called for September 26th at Albany by proclamation of the Governor, in consequence of the burning of Washington by the enemy and the exposed condition of our State and the danger of invasion. Colonel Samuel

The Republicans controlled both branches of the Legislature of 1815, mainly because of the patriotic spirit they had displayed in the conduct of the war. The news arrived February 12th that the treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States had been signed at Ghent December 24, 1814.

The regular session began January 31, 1815, and the following day the new Council of Appointment was announced: Jonathan Dayton of Suffolk, Lucas Elmendorf of Ulster, Ruggles Hubbard of Rensselaer, and Farrand Stranahan of Otsego. No time was lost in removing every Federalist from office. Martin Van Buren was appointed attorney general as soon as Abraham Van Vechten was removed, an appointment that produced considerable discord in the Republican ranks. The schism in the Republican party was not abridged by the removal of DeWitt Clinton from the office of mayor of New York, and the appointment of John Ferguson, the grand sachem of the Tammany Society, as his successor, the change having been inspired by personal jealousy and resentment rather than from political motives. In July Mr. Ferguson resigned in order to accept the position of surveyor of the port of New York, and he in turn was succeeded as mayor by Judge Jacob Radcliff, who, as a Federalist, was displaced by DeWitt Clinton in 1810. Jacob Rutsen Van Rensselaer ceased to be Secretary of State by order of the Council, who appointed General Peter B. Porter of Black Rock, one of the heroes of the second war with Great Britain. Charles Z. Platt was removed as State Treasurer and was succeeded by Gerrit L. Dox of Albany.

1815. February 13.

His Excellency the Commander-in-chief having reported to the Council that during the recess he had conferred on Peter B. Porter the brevet rank of major general of the militia of this State in approbation of his gallantry and services rendered as a brigadier general in the battles of Chippewa and Bridgewater, and having also reported the distinguished conduct of the said Peter B. Porter in the several rencounters which took place with the enemy at Erie, it is, therefore, unanimously

Resolved, that the said brevet be confirmed and that the said Peter B. Porter be and he is hereby appointed a major general in the militia of the State of New York.

The Commander-in-chief reported that Jonathan Williams, esquire, late colonel of the corps of engineers of the United States, having rendered distinguished services to the State of New York in planning and erecting the fortifications thereof, and in the several defences of the city of New York without any remuneration or acknowledgment therefor, he had in consideration of such services and of his high estimation of the talents and virtues of the said Jonathan Williams, conferred upon him the brevet rank of brigadier general in the militia of the State, thereupon, Resolved, unanimously, that the said brevet be confirmed, and that the said Jonathan Williams be and he is hereby appointed a brigadier general in the militia of the State of New York.

The Commander-in-chief having laid before the Council an official communication from Brigadier General Oliver Collins, commanding at Sackett's Harbor, the 23d of October last, containing the following report, viz:

"I am extremely mortified that I am obliged to report to your Excellency Captain Obadiah Latham and Lieutenant Albion Smith of the One Hundred and Thirty-fourth regiment, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel William Stone, in the thirteenth brigade, as having disgraced their commissions by deserting their companies at this post. They practiced a shameful deception on me, by feigning ill-health and requesting a pass to get by the picket to enjoy the fresh air which I granted, with an express order to return the same day. Instead of obeying the order they packed up and left the camp altogether and took with them two soldiers. I received letters from them dated at Watertown, stating that they there waited my further orders and making an apology for their disobedience, upon which I sent an officer to arrest them. On his arrival at Watertown he enquired at the house where they said they were, but found they had not been there at all; they must consequently have false dated their letters, anticipating a pursuit. Captain Latham also wrote to his lieutenant (Shepard), to get the company discharged—if he could not do that, to come off with the men.

"They have eluded my pursuit and prevented a trial—all I can do now is to leave them to the disposal of your Excellency." Whereupon

STATE MILITIA.

Whereas complaints have been exhibited to the Council against Captain Garret P. Van Wie, Lieutenant Abraham Rosekrans and 1815.

Lieutenant Garret Hogan, officers of the militia of the state of New York, representing that the said captain and lieutenants were detached and entered the service of the United States in the month of September last past and continued in service during the period of service of the battalion and regiment of militia to which they were attached. That the said officers selected and cleared from other duty three soldiers of the line of their respective corps as servants of said officers, to wit: Wendell W. Hellebrandt as servant of Lieutenant Rosekrans, John Fronk as servant of Lieutenant Hogan, and Silvanus B. Dey as servant of Captain Van Wie, and that the several officers before mentioned, with a view to defraud the United States and in violation of their duty as officers, did improperly and dishonorably hire and tutor certain boys or other persons not belonging to the line or corps or any other corps then in service to appear on the inspection of the said corps and declare themselves respectively servants of the officers aforesaid, which boys or other persons did appear at inspection and acknowledge themselves servants of the aforesaid officers and the said officers received from the United States, and applied to their own use, pay, rations and clothing for said boys as servants actually employed and paid by them, when in fact the production of the said boys or persons for inspection as aforesaid was an imposition and fraud upon the United States by the officers before named, because the said officers did not hire and employ or pay the said boys as servants, except about two dollars each for their trouble in appearing at inspection and answering falsely the questions put to them by the inspecting officer, and that the said officers in their accounts for said pretended servants' wages did respectively certify on honor that the said boys or persons so inspected as servants as aforesaid were actually employed and kept by the said officers as servants, and that they had not employed any soldiers of the line as servants for the said time, and that their accounts for the pay and subsistence of said boys or persons as servants were accurate and just, when at the same time the said officers well knew their said certificates on honor to be false, fraudulent and an imposition upon the United States; therefore

Resolved, that the Commander-in-chief be requested to cause a board of inquiry of militia officers to be instituted to examine into and ascertain the facts in relation to the said complaints and to report them to the Commander-in-chief to be laid before the Council of Appointment at their next session.

STATE.

Resolved, that Richard Platt be and he hereby is appointed assistant commissary of ordnance and military stores for the southern district and William Carpender is appointed assistant commissary of ordnance and military stores for the western district of this State.

For the first time in the history of the State the election returns in April, 1815, indicated an evenly divided assembly politically. There were no returns from the counties of Kings and St. Lawrence. The organization of the House was not perfected until January 31, 1816, as the entire Federalist delegation purposely remained away from the Capitol because of the absence of several of their colleagues from the city. Daniel Cruger of Steuben county defeated Jacob Rutsen Van Rensselaer of Columbia, Federalist, for Speaker by one vote.

On February 4th the Council of Appointment was named: Darius Crosby of Westchester, William Ross of Orange, Perley Keyes of Jefferson, and Archibald S. Clark of Niagara.

On February 20th the Republicans in caucus renominated Governor Tompkins and Lieutenant-Governor Tayler. The Federalists nominated Rufus King of Albany for Governor and George Tibbits of Troy for Lieutenant-Governor. The triumph of the Republicans was complete. Governor Tompkins' majority, with one exception, was the largest a candidate ever received. The Republicans carried all the great Senate districts except the eastern and elected two-thirds of the members of assembly. July 8th the Council removed John Van Ness, recorder of Albany, and appointed Philip S. Parker, a nephew of Judge Ambrose Spencer.

The Legislature met November 5, 1816, for the purpose of selecting presidential electors. Electors favorable to the election of James Monroe of Virginia for President and Daniel D. Tompkins of New York for Vice-President were chosen. On November 12th the Legislature adjourned to meet in Albany January 14, 1817.

The regular winter session of the legislature began January 14, 1817. On January 28th Governor Tompkins sent to the legislature his memorable message recommending the abolition of slavery in this state on July 4, 1827, a suggestion that was subsequently carried into effect. The new Council of Appointment was chosen February 13th: Walter Bowne of New York, John Noyes of Chenango, John I. Prendergast of Herkimer, and Henry Bloom of Cayuga. The entire session was devoted to state politics, the election of Governor Tompkins to the vice-presidency having opened up a contest in the Republican party that extended from one end of the state to the other. Governor Tompkins had opposed the plans for internal improvements that had been so heartily and enthusiastically advocated by DeWitt Clinton and his friends, and at the present time the entire western part of the state, irrespective of political affiliation, was clamoring in no uncertain manner for direct water communication with the Hudson river. There is no question but at this particular time the most popular man in the state was DeWitt Clinton, for he represented what was generally regarded to be a policy that meant greater expansion, greater influence and greater wealth for the state. To check his headway, a suggestion was made that Governor Tompkins should hold both offices of governor and vice-president, but Governor Tompkins was too politic to take such an unpopular course. Consequently on February 24th Governor Tompkins resigned and John Tayler became acting governor. The legislature promptly passed an act to provide for the election of a governor. The friends of Mr. Clinton were unwilling to hazard his chances to a legislative caucus, and accordingly suggested a state convention, which should consist of the Republican members of the legislature, with delegates to be chosen from those counties that were represented in the legislature by Federal members. The state convention was held at Albany March 25th; Mr. Clinton received 85 votes against 41 for General Peter B. Porter.

At this session of the legislature was passed the bill to provide for the construction of the Erie and the Champlain canals.

The Federalists made no nomination against Mr. Clinton, whose election, to all intents and purposes, was unanimous. On the 27th of August, the Council of Appointment held a meeting and made a few changes, solely for political reasons. As originally composed, all the members of the Council were friends of Mr. Clinton, except Mr. Bowne, the New York member. The suggestion was made at this meeting that the time was ripe for the governor to punish those office holders who had been inimical to his interests, but to these importunings the governor turned a deaf ear.

Governor Clinton, by proclamation, designated November 13, 1817, as Thanksgiving day.
