“Recruiting Is a Pleasure”

That's the slogan of Major William J. Mangine, in charge of the Recruiting Bureau of The Adjutant General's office, and Major Mangine works on just that principle!

No doubt all the readers are familiar with the then Captain Mangine's Machine Gunners—Company D, 10th Infantry, Albany—for ten years he always had a full strength company—for ten years he had 100% present at inspection—for ten years he had 100% present at field training.

Many May Wonder How It Can Be Done? Two Words Spell the Answer.

PERSONALITY AND APPLICATION

Personality to sell enlistments to desirable men; and application to work for the success of the unit you command.

We speak of all this because Major Mangine's old command was about ten men under strength all winter and something had to be done quickly to bring it up to strength before camp. Naturally an appeal went out to the unit's former commander, a successful recruiter. The results are given in an article from the “Albany Evening News” which we quote:

Major William J. Mangine this week unofficially rejoined the company and directed a successful campaign to recruit it to its full strength of seventy-two.

Nine new men were enlisted in the company and four others re-enlisted in one of the liveliest campaigns ever witnessed in the infantry.

The company for more than six months has lacked an average of ten men. Various ways and means of recruiting it to its full strength were tried out, but found unsuccessful. Meetings were held, dinners staged and campaigns inaugurated, but with very little success.

As the time for the company to prepare for camp neared, it was decided that something must be done and done quick. One of the members of the company suggested calling on Major Mangine, who had kept the company one of the finest of the Tenth during his regime. This was done.

Major Mangine answered the call with the statement that “recruiting was a pleasure.” A campaign was inaugurated, a paper “Recruiting Notes” published, a campaign program made up, and hardly before it was fully underway the company was at its full strength.

Although the company is once more at its full strength, it has been decided not to slow down in recruiting again. A waiting list has been established and already a number of names have been placed on this.

During the campaign, Major Mangine had the assistance of Sgt. Emery Mead, Sgt. John Klahr and Pvts. Richard La Tassa and Dominich Korzatowski.

The problem of recruiting must be studied in each locality, but it is not difficult if one takes it as a pleasure—and why not? You have something to sell! As a member of the National Guard, a young man gets everything free—club house, training, athletics, pay and a chance to cultivate a large group of young men of his own age, who later in life may be in positions to greatly aid him—for military “Buddies” are lasting friendships. Then there is the greatest thing to be considered—by joining the Guard one acquires that military knowledge that brings the non-com warrant, or commission if war should come.

Room 1006, Court Square Building, 2 Lafayette Street, New York City

"It will be strictly non-political; it will not attempt to exploit any theme or theory on partisan lines; it will religiously refrain from 'underwriting' the ambitions or activities of any individual, public or private, it will be severely independent, making its appeal to the interests of the readers rather than to the vanity of those in charge; it will encourage that training which no successful business man can ignore if he desires his employees to be better disciplined and trained to give 100 per cent of duty to all work entrusted to them—it will be a vehicle for the propagation of one policy and only one: Better Guardsmanship and Better Citizenship!"

THE Annual New York State Matches, authorized by M. L. 112, augmented by the annual matches of the New York State Rifle Association, were held at Camp Smith, Peekskill, from June 8 to 14 and were very largely attended. The competition and interest was keen although the 107th Infantry had by far the strongest squad of riflemen, commanded by Captain Weennes. West Point put in several teams in the Association Events, although they did not seem quite as fast as last year's Military Academy representatives. Cpl. J. H. Fitzgerald of Company L, 107th Infantry, was the outstanding individual rifleman of the matches and it is to be regretted that having fired three consecutive years on the National Match team he is ineligible this year although evidently at his peak.

Governor's Cup Skirmish

Capt. H. F. Gormsen, 102nd Eng. 98.00
 Pvt. 1st Cl. R. A. Devereaux, 107th Inf. 97.96
 Pvt. Gregory T. Kelly, 107th Inf. 97.91

There were over 125 starters in the skirmish and Kelly and Devereaux having tied for second ran another skirmish with above results.

In the Thurston Trophy Match a new course of parts of the National Match was fired taking the free rifle off shoulder two strings or 20 shots standing and two strings of rapid fire on the "A" target both at 200 and 300 yards. It was a fast and hard course and brought out the following medal winners:

Thurston Match

1st—Pvt. 1st Cl. R. A. Devereaux, 107th Inf. 274
 2nd—Sgt. E. Jelinek, 71st Inf. 274
 3rd—Pvt. P. H. Agramonte, 107th Inf. 271

In the Adjutant General's Match, a three-man unit team, fifteen shots at 600 and fifteen shots at one thousand yards, Co. F, 108th Infantry, from Medina, tied last year's record-breaking score of 419 hung up by Company G of the 107th Infantry, only to be nosed out for the state trophy and silver medals by Company L, 107th Infantry, who hung up a new record of 423. In this match Company F, 165th Infantry, pulled up into third position. Indeed one of the sensations of the matches was the great strides in shooting made by the 165th Infantry's team. In this match Cpl. J. H. Fitzgerald made 145 out of a possible 150, dropping only one out of the bullseye at 1000 yards.

The State Match, where all rifle teams meet to shoot for the highest team honors, the 107th again pulled out winners:

State Match

107th Infantry	3849
102nd Engineers	3761
108th Infantry	3711
165th Infantry	3645
71st Infantry	3613
106th Infantry	3458

The Brigade matches were close for twelve men teams, the 106th winning its brigade match (the 53rd Infantry) for the first time in eleven years. Again out of all the competitors Cpl. J. H. Fitzgerald, 107th Infantry, was high rifle with a score of 145 out of 150.

HEADQUARTERS MATCH

102nd Engineers (no contestants) 1564

53rd INFANTRY BRIGADE MATCH

Winner—106th Infantry 1606
 10th Infantry 1561

54th INFANTRY BRIGADE MATCH

Winner—107th Infantry 1646
 108th Infantry 1597

71st Infantry (no contestants) 1568

93rd INFANTRY BRIGADE MATCH

Winner—165th Infantry 1615
 14th Infantry 1556

In the pistol matches, again the enlisted men made the officers "step on it," only three gaining the coveted places on the preliminary state team for the National matches. The medal winners were:

Preliminary State Pistol Team

Pvt. 1st Cl. R. A. Devereaux, 107th Inf.	255
Pvt. 1st Cl. F. B. Monell, Jr., 101st Cav.	254
1st Sgt. Ward E. Brown, 104th F. A.	250
Sgt. Ralph L. Alliance, 104th F. A.	248
Sgt. Jules A. Guedalia, 101st Cav.	242
Pvt. P. H. Agramonte, 107th Inf.	240
1st Lt. Leonard Ross, 71st Inf.	237
1st Sgt. Floyd Cornell, 104th F. A.	234
1st Lt. J. E. J. Clare, Jr., 258th F. A.	234
2nd Lt. R. H. Bunting, 101st Cav.	231
2nd Lt. A. N. Gormsen, 102nd Eng.	227
Sgt. Albert T. Hess, 104th F. A.	227

These men will fire the course six more times during July and August, the high six being sent to Camp Perry to represent the State in the National Pistol matches.

In the team pistol matches, the 104th Field Artillery again outshot the 101st Cavalry for possession of the Sayre Cup (teams of six), although Pvt. 1st Cl. F. B. Monnell, Jr., again secured the gold medal for high score with a percentage of 96.83.

Sayre Match Percentages

104th Field Artillery	93.76%
156th Field Artillery	90.61%
101st Cavalry (2nd Squad)	90.53%
101st Cavalry (1st Squad)	87.72%
212th Coast Artillery A. A.	80.11%

In the Richardson pistol trophy match, teams of four, for field artillery battery contests, the match was won by the 1st Bat. Hq. Battery of the 104th F. A. (Binghamton) with an average percentage of 94.71; the Service Battery, 156th F. A., was second with 86.65%.

One of the big features of the shooting tournament was the Navy matches, there were sailors everywhere, each division taking part with a team in the Naval Militia's Veteran's Trophy match and the 2nd Bat. Naval Militia's match also bringing out some fast shooting. In fact, the navy turned out so strong, that Captain Hesselman and Commander Neilen sent the news to Rear Admiral Franklin, who came up in person, to commend the men for their zeal in arousing renewed interest in marksmanship in the Naval Militia.

The officials of the matches were: Honorary Executive Officer, Col. A. J. MacNab; Executive Officer, Lieut. Col. Fred M. Waterbury; Assistant Executive Officers, Lieut. Col. Edward J. Parish, Lieut. Col. George H. Johnson, Lieut. Col. Henry E. Suavet; Chief Range Officer, Capt. Arthur J. Stark; Range Officers, Capt. Joseph A. Forgett, Capt. Thomas F. Burke, 1st Lieut. Fred W. Ellis, 1st Lieut. Alfred N. Gormsen; Adjutant, Capt. Walter S. Mullins; Statistical Officer, 1st Lieut. John H. Travers, Jr.; Quartermaster, Major William J. Mangine; Surgeon, Lieut. Col. Edward J. Parish.

The officers of the New York State Rifle Association are: President, Lieut. Col. George H. Johnson; Vice Presidents, Brig. General George R. Dyer, Brig. General Bird W. Spencer, A. L. A. Himmelwright, Joseph E. Silliman, Captain Henry E. Evans; Treasurer, Lieut. Col. Henry E. Suavet; Secretary, Capt. Frank E. Rashbach; Executive Officer, Lieut. Col. Frederick M. Waterbury; Executive Committee, Lieut. Col. E. McK. Froment, Major John M. Perry, Lieut. W. A. Swan.

As a result of the standing in all these rifle matches the preliminary state team is selected. The tryout for the final selection of those who will go to Camp Perry, August 24th to September 14th, will be held at Camp Smith, July 19th at 2 P. M.

THE LUQUER PISTOL CUP MATCH

The Luquer Pistol Cup Match, annual competition between teams representing the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Reserve Officers of the Second Corps Area, was fired at Fort Hamilton, Saturday afternoon, June 28th. Barring the Army team, which was a trifle stronger, it was a very closely contested match, the Regular Army winning with a team average of 96.39%, followed by the National Guard team with 93.87% and the Reserve Officers with 93.39%. It was the first year in which each branch was represented by an almost equally strong team. The Regular Army, having won the cup the third time, becomes the owner of the trophy. The National Guard and Reserve Officers each had one "leg" on same. The regulation dismounted course was fired and the army team had perhaps its best pistol shots in the five including 1st Lieut. T. H. Marsh, who made a national record in this match in 1928 with a score of 99.67%, and Captain E. Andino, a former Olympic Pistol Team man.

The weather was ideal and there was a fair-sized gallery including Colonel Luquer, the donor of the cup and organizer of the match five years ago.

The Army's percentages were:

1st Lt. T. H. Marsh (18th Inf.)	98.00%
Capt. G. S. McCullough (16th Inf.)	96.83%
1st Lt. H. W. Barrack (D.O.L.)	96.66%
Capt. E. Andino (16th Inf.)	96.33%
2nd Lt. J. E. Totten (16th Inf.)	94.14%

The All National Guard Team was captained by Lieut. Colonel Fred M. Waterbury, State Ordnance Officer, the percentages made by the members being:

Lt. Col. N. H. Schwartzkopf (N. J.)	95.16%
Capt. John Grier (Del.)	94.83%
1st Lt. J. E. J. Clare, Jr. (N. Y.)	93.78%
Capt. George F. Johnston (N. Y.)	93.66%
1st Lt. Leo. W. Dufort (N. Y.)	91.94%

1st Lieut. E. N. Carples, 107th Inf., and 2nd Lieut. Robert Waldo, 104th Field Artillery, were the two alternates, but as all the principals were present, did not fire.

The members of the Reserve Officers team made the following scores (most of them not being in uniform, the official scorer did not get their titles):

Laman	94.66%
Amundsen	94.61%
Stevens	93.66%
Turner	92.61%
Menger	91.44%

The Officers' Mess at Fort Hamilton entertained the members of the teams at luncheon and surrounded the visitors with every phase of the most genial hospitality.

The officials of the match were:

- Executive Officer*—Major Paul J. Dowling, 18th Inf.
- Statistical Officer*—Captain K. B. Wise, 18th Inf.
- Ordnance Officer*—Lieut. J. A. McComsey, C.A.C.
- Range Officers*—Lieuts. J. R. Pierce, Inf. (M.P.), W. F. Kelotat, 18th Inf. and J. F. R. Seitz, 18th Inf.

Lieut. Jean D. Scott acted as a guide for the N. G. team and Lieut. D. W. Quinn for the Reserve Officers' team.

MAJOR HANSCOM SELECTED BY THE GOVERNOR

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt has just appointed Major Frank I. Hanscom, chaplain of the 106th Infantry, to membership on the State Parole Board. In speaking of this selection, editorially, the Brooklyn Times said:

"By this action Governor Roosevelt brings to a position of unusual importance a cultivated mind, military training that should equip him for the tasks in store for him, and a humanitarian outlook on life that is the necessary result of previous experience in the ministry of the Christian church. It would seem, indeed, when the catalogue of his qualifications is recited that he possesses all the attributes of firmness, patience, devotion to the public service, and human charity that should characterize membership in such an official group.

"And Major Hanscom's activities have been such as to stand out distinctively in public view. He is the present chaplain of the 106th Infantry, becoming such before the call to arms brought the regiment overseas in the great war. And he served throughout in the fields of France and Flanders. For seven years he had been pastor of the Lewis Avenue Congregational Church. So that his service bridges the chasm between two such widely divergent aspects of life as religion and war.

"He has been a resident of Brooklyn for seventeen years and active in its affairs. In the vigor of life, with a rounded and extensive knowledge of men and affairs, his selection should do much to start successfully what in effect is a new system of penology in the State."

SEA GIRT HOLDS BIG PISTOL TEAM MATCH

The largest pistol team match ever held in the Second Corps Area was one of the feature events of the opening day of the small bore rifle tournament held the first week in July at Sea Girt and sponsored by the New Jersey Rifle Association. It was a divisional affair and every division, Regular Army, National Guard and Reserve in this section of the country had a good team of five officers participating. The trophy was a very handsome silver cup, designed especially, and presented by Major General Quincy A. Gillmore, commanding 44th Division, N. J. N. G., for annual divisional competition. The 27th Division Team, captained and coached by the Division Ordnance Officer, lost the match to the 1st Division Regular Army by 67/100 of one per cent. Although they had the second, third and fourth high men of all the teams losing high individual score prize, donated by the Colt Fire Arms Company (a 45 cal. service pistol) by 14/100 of one per cent, Captain McCullough of the Army nipping out Lieutenant Carples of the 107th Infantry, N. Y. N. G.

The teams were royally entertained by the officers of the N. J. N. G. and Captain Frazee of the Ordnance Department, New Jersey, ran the range in splendid form. The average percentage made by the teams was:

1st Division, U. S. A.	95.20%
27th Division, N. Y. N. G.	94.53%
44th Division, N. J. N. G.	93.70%
78th Division, Reserve	91.63%
79th Division, Reserve	90.83%
28th Division, Penn. N. G.	90.12%
77th Division, Reserve	89.71%

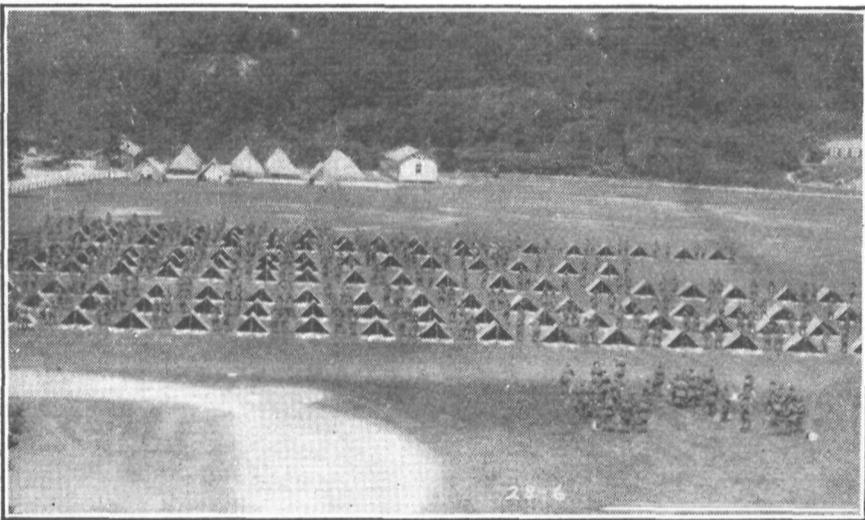

The 27th Division team was made up of Captain George F. Johnston, score 93%; Captain L. J. McCann, 104th F. A., 91.67%; First Lieutenant John R. Cavanaugh, 104th F. A., 96%; First Lieutenant E. N. Carples, 107th Infantry, 96.16%; First Lieutenant Leo W. Dufort, 105th Infantry, 95.84%.

The tournament was so successful as a "get-together" party of a lot of crack pistol shots and instructors that it is planned to have an indoor shoot, probably near Trenton some time in December. It was also decided to hold the next annual outdoor team match on a Saturday afternoon so as to make it more convenient for officers attending.

Medical Regiment Ends Field Training

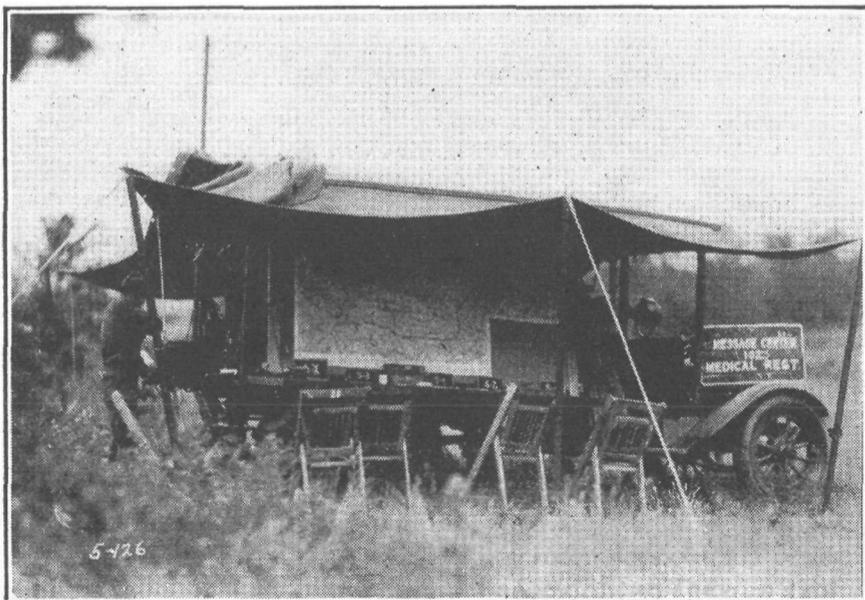

THE 102nd Medical Regiment, N. Y. N. G., commanded by Colonel Lucius A. Salisbury, M. C., with Lieutenant Colonel Robert P. Wadhams, M. C. as executive officer has just completed the most successful and most strenuous tour of field training in its history.

For three days and two nights, the regiment evacuated hundreds of wounded during a "withdrawal" battle, which began 20 miles east of Peekskill. The whole personnel of the regiment and all of its motor equipment were on the job. Collecting stations were established, wounded loaded onto ambulances and carried back to the hospitals, where they were "operated," "degassed" or "buried," according to their wounds. The Veterinary Company had twenty horses and each day tagged and evacuated them as wounded animals. The new type message center truck was used, field telephones were laid each day from this center to the ambulance control point and on to the collecting station behind the front line. Each night each company bivouacked wherever it happened to be. The rolling kitchens and water tanks supplied the food and drink. Every officer and man worked like a Trojan and made the exercise a great success.

The new distinctive dress uniforms, maroon coats and indigo blue trousers made an excellent impression on all observers.

Colonel Salisbury and his staff out at the problem.

Colonel Salisbury and the regiment were highly complimented by Colonel Biscomp of the Militia Bureau and also by Colonel T. Jenkins, Division Surgeon and Commanding Officer of the 101st Medical Regiment of Massachusetts. Both of these officers spent the entire three days with the regiment on the problem and followed every phase of the work. Our own Division Staff officers, Colonel Anderson, G. 3 and Major Davenport spent time making a study of the problem with our officers.

A Study in Heraldry

SINCE the adoption of regimental coats of arms, we have become increasingly familiar with the general appearance of many of those displayed by the regiments of the State, but in very few instances is the significance known to anyone outside the organization concerned. In order to effect a uniform significance, or symbolism, the rules of heraldry were developed, and anyone familiar with those rules can interpret, at least partially, almost any coat of arms that is properly designed.

The face of the shield, which may be of any recognizable shape (except that the lozenge, i.e., diamond shape, is reserved for women), is technically known as the field. To facilitate description, the field is divided into 9 parts: A, the dexter chief; B, the middle chief; C, the sinister chief; D, the honor point; E, the fess point; F, the nombril point; G, the dexter base; H, the middle base; J, the sinister base. The field is always described with reference to the position of the bearer, which results in the dexter or right side being opposite the left hand of the observer.

Three elements enter into the design shown on the face of the shield: tinctures, lines of division, and charges. Tinctures are colors and in heraldry there are only 5: gules (red), azure (blue), sable (black), vert (green), purpure (purple), while yellow and white are termed "metals" and named or and argent respectively. The symbolism of these tinctures and metals is as follows:

- Or—Generosity, elevation of mind
- Argent—Peace or sincerity
- Gules—Military fortitude
- Azure—Loyalty, truth
- Sable—Constancy, grief (rare)
- Vert—Hope, joy
- Purpure—Majesty, sovereignty, justice.

A tincture must not be imposed on a tincture, nor a metal on a metal, that is, a red arrow, for example, must not be shown on a blue field, and likewise a golden arrow must not be shown on a silver field.

When a field is divided into two equal parts by a vertical line it is said to be parted "per pale"; by a horizontal line, "per fess"; by a horizontal line issuing from the dexter chief, "per bend"; by a diagonal line issuing from the sinister chief, "per bend sinister."

A charge is any symbolical emblem or figure born in the field, and there is practically no limit to the range of choice. There are records of almost every conceivable figure, from a woman's breast to a locomotive, but there are nine that are most frequently used. These and their symbolisms follow:

- Chief—Authority, successful command in war
 - Pale—Standing uprightly for country, fortitude
 - Bend—Defense
 - Fess—Military belt or girdle of honor
 - Bar—Self-control
 - Chevron—Defense of home or country, protection
 - Cross—Professing Christian attributes
 - Saltire—Resolution, reward of those who have scaled enemy walls.
- Another less frequently encountered is the Pile (engineering ability). There is no such thing in heraldry as the "bar sinister." There is, however, the battune sinister (diminutive of the bend sinister), which was sometimes used to denote ineligibility for succession to a throne because of illegitimacy.

Birds and animals are often used as charges, and in every case they are to be interpreted in terms of their most noble and desirous qualities. Many of these attributes are generally understood, while others are derived from the fanciful and sometimes absurd ideas current during the Middle Ages. Pliny's Natural History seems to have been frequently consulted, some amusing ideas being thus perpetuated. A few samples may be interesting. Pliny says of stags, "Stags passe the seas swimming by flockes and whole heards in a long row, each one resting his head upon his fellow next before him; and this they doe in course, so as the foremost retireth behind to the hindmost by turnes, one after another." "Cranes," he says, "when they mind to take a flight over the sea Pontus, they will flie directly at the first to the narrow streights of the said sea, . . . and then presently they ballaise themselves with stones in their feet and sand in their throats, that they flie more steadie and endure the wind. When they be halfe way over, down they fling those stones, but when they are come to the continent, the sand also they disgorge out of their craws." Animals are usually shown "proper," that is, in their natural colors, and when a side view is shown, the animal is faced toward the dexter side of the field. Following is the significance usually ascribed to some of the animals and birds often employed:

- Lion—Deathless courage
- Tiger—Fierce and valorous, dangerous to arouse
- Elephant—Courageous and strong
- Leopard—Valiant and hardy, bold
- Horse—Ready for all employment for king and country
- Boar—Fights till death
- Beaver—Industry
- Grasshopper—A special emblem of nobility
- Eagle—Lofty spirit
- Falcon—Hot in pursuit of desired object
- Owl—Vigilance
- Serpent—Wisdom.

Occasionally a coat of arms is based on a pun, as for example, the arms of Cranston might employ a crane holding a stone in its beak. The 27th Division shoulder insignia, which in heraldry would be termed a badge, is another example of this practice, the conventionalized constellation of Orion being a pun on the name of the war-time commander, Major-General O'Ryan.

A crest is a part of a complete coat of arms which may be omitted, although its inclusion is usual. It is placed above the field on a base which represents a wreath of the adopted colors of the person or organization concerned. The crest of all N.Y.N.G. organizations is the "Half Moon," Henry Hudson's ship. It is generally supposed that the crest is the heraldic result of the custom among knights of fastening to their helmets some article of sentimental or distinctive significance, but eventually it came to have an hereditary and therefore permanent quality. In English heraldry, no lady, except those of the Royal Family, is entitled to a crest.

THE WEARING OF THE UNIFORM

The following is an editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Fifth Corps Area News, published at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.:

"It has taken the Militia Bureau three years to horde up enough money to supply the National Guard with the new olive drab roll collar uniform. That has now been accomplished and everybody is proud of them. The first pictures that have come out show a marked improvement in the outfits. They are all dolled up in fine shape and there is no one thing that will go so far to create a good impression in the eyes of the public.

"Every soldier owes himself and his organization a sense of pride in his personal appearance. It is this feature that the people take into account in large measure in estimating a man's character. If he is indifferent and careless in his outward appearance they say he is likely to be the same in his other habits of life.

"A National Guard outfit makes or breaks itself in the minds of the community on its appearance when it turns out in formation. The people as a rule know nothing of its training and readiness for service. They judge it solely on appearance.

"The mere wearing of the roll collar blouse will not accomplish everything that is desired. There are other features of the uniform that must be attended to. There are a few simple rules that will go a long ways toward the desired end.

"First, keep your uniform clean, neatly pressed and in good repair. A lot may be accomplished towards this by taking a little time at the termination of a formation to put the uniforms away carefully so they will be ready for use the next time they are required. Throwing them down in the clothing storage room will soon render them unfit for dress-up occasions.

"Second, uniform appearance may be obtained by having every button and ornament on in its proper place, and all shined up bright. These things need constant attention and they are the ones most often neglected.

"Third, have the shoes of every man polished when the outfit turns out in formation. There is no one thing that will so mar the appearance of a company as for a dozen or so men to turn out with dirty shoes. They take all the pep out of the appearance of it. Have the leggings neatly rolled. Practice rolling them until every man can get them on neatly.

"Fourth, do not wear unauthorized articles. Do not wear a mixed uniform. You cannot have a pleasing and uniform appearance if men are permitted to do these things. Wear the cap square on the head. Slopping it over at an angle or taking out the grommet in order to form it into grotesque shapes should be absolutely taboo.

"The company that carries out these few simple rules will find its appearance much improved and the home folks will give it a glad hand. They will honestly be proud that they have such an organization and glad to call it their own."

ONE OF THE 27th DIVISION POSTS OUTING

The May meeting of Post 32, composed of members from Westchester County and the Bronx was held at West Point on May 12th. Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large number of members and friends attended. The meeting was in charge of the stewards with Captain Henry W. G. Cox, formerly 102d Supply Train, in charge of the transportation. The convoy left Mount Vernon at 8:30 A. M., making stops at White Plains, Tarrytown and Ossining.

The following organizations were represented: 102d Engineers, 102d Train Headquarters and M. P., 102d Supply Train, 104th Field Artillery, 105th Field Artillery and 106th Field Artillery, 105th, 106th, 107th and 108th Infantry Regiments.

Post 32 was organized Sept. 12, 1929, and is composed at present of about 60 members, with many applications pending. It meets the fourth Wednesday of each month at the City Hall, Mount Vernon. Every regiment, battalion and separate unit is represented in the Post.

A smoker will be held in July and an active program is planned for the fall.

Gen. Schohl Receives High State Honor

Attorney General Hamilton Ward has announced the appointment of William F. Schohl of Buffalo, brigadier general in command of the 52nd Artillery brigade, to the position of confidential assistant. Gen. Schohl succeeds Vincent G. Hart, who resigned as confidential assistant to become affiliated with the Fox Film corporation.

INTERNATIONAL RIFLE TEAM EXPECTED TO WIN WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

In the opinion of officials of the National Rifle Association, this year's United States International Free Rifle Team shows great promise of bringing back to America the coveted Argentine Trophy, emblematic of the world's championship in free rifle shooting. In 27 years of International Free Rifle Matches, the United States has entered nine teams, winning first place four times. This year's matches will be held on the great range at Antwerp, Belgium. Teams from all the leading nations of the world will attend, accompanied by team officials and various foreign representatives, assembled to watch the annual conflict between Switzerland and the United States for first place. It was announced earlier that the matches would take place on August 15, 16 and 17, but these dates were changed to August 7, 8 and 9 by officials of the Union Internationale de Tir, under whose auspices the matches are held. The American team will sail from New York on the Red Star Liner Lapland, July 11.

The National Rifle Association, together with the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, sponsors the team which is sent by the United States and defrays its expenses. Marksmen selected, either by preliminary tryouts or past performances, are invited to come to the rifle range at Quantico, Virginia, and take part in the final tryouts for places on the team. This year, 17 of America's keenest marksmen, most of them in civil life, attended the tryouts. After a week of intensive shooting, the team was picked on the basis of scores fired in the finals. Winners of the seven coveted places were: Harry N. Renshaw, Nogales, Ariz.; Sgt. Joe B. Sharp, U. S. A., Holdenville, Okla.; Sgt. Morris Fisher, U. S. M. C., Washington, D. C.; Russel F. Seitzinger, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Emmet O. Swanson, Minneapolis, Minn.; William Bruce, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Frank T. Parsons, Washington, D. C. Officials of the team are Major John Keith Boles, Field Artillery, U. S. A., team captain; Major Julian S. Hatcher, Ordnance Dept., U. S. A., team adjutant; and Lieut. Sidney R. Hinds, Infantry, U. S. A., team coach. All of the team members, except Swanson and Parsons, are old hands at the international game. The two newcomers came within a very few points of making last year's team and have made remarkable improvement in their shooting ability since that time. The average team score made in the tryouts was 5,440 out of a possible 6,000, just two points below the existing world's record with which Switzerland won the last year's matches. The Swiss are the finest rifle-shooters in the world. It is as much their national sport as baseball is ours. In Switzerland, admission is charged to attend rifle-matches and there is always a crowded gallery. All of the boys in that country learn to fire a rifle at an early age. All of which explains why Switzerland holds all free rifle records except the team prone record of 1,906 x 2,000 made at Rheims by our 1924 team and the individual prone record of 389 x 400 made by William Bruce of the U. S. team at Rome in 1927.

This year the Americans will make a gallant effort to bring back the championship which we have not held since 1924. This would probably result in the Internationals being held in America the following year. Among a field of excellent shots the Swiss hold two trump cards in Hartman and Zimmerman who lead their team to victory and a new world's record every year. Equipped with the finest rifles Springfield Armory can produce and the exceptional ammunition made by the Ordnance Department, the American team is out to beat the Hartman-Zimmerman combination and "bring home the bacon."

Switzerland has reason to be proud of its international rifle record. Twenty-one times in 26 matches have they won first place. In 1898, the honors went to France. The remaining four times the Americans topped the field.

"OLD 13th" EMBARKS FOR FISHER'S ISLAND

Anxious to get back to Fisher's Island after an absence of one year, the officers and enlisted men of the 245th Coast Artillery in Brooklyn, better known as "The Old 13th" embarked Sunday morning, June 22nd, for a two weeks' camp tour.

The strength of the outfit is at an exceptionally high standard this year, there being room for no more than twenty men in order to hit the maximum. The men are looking forward to a more ordinary and leisurely camp tour than the one spent last year at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, where they were an extremely important factor in the regular Army-Navy maneuvers.

The track meet, the athletic feature of the tour, is being made the subject of much conjecture. Batteries M and G, with quite a wealth of reserve strength, are threatening the athletic monopoly of the First Battalion's Batteries E and F. The competition this year will be tougher than has been customary due to the absence of an athletic meet in 1929.

The tough job the regiment had at Fort Hancock should prove a valuable aid in its quest for a still higher coast artillery rating. Major General Hanson E. Ely mistook the outfit for a regular army unit.

WEST POINTERS GRADUATE

The 128th graduating exercises at West Point June 12th commissioned 242 young men as second lieutenants in the U. S. Army after four years of intensive study and soldiering. In this number are many who owe their entrance to service in the New York National Guard which provided the means of trying competitive examinations for appointment.

BUFFALO'S SHOOTING FESTIVAL

The 174th Infantry's spring sport season ended with Company F holding the third and final leg on the Veterans' rifle trophy, and Company D adjudged 1930 winner of the Fox trophy for pistol.

High score in the Veterans' match was 3293. The team is led by Captain James M. H. Wallace. Second place went to Second Battalion Headquarters Company, led by Lieutenant Lynn D. Wallace, with a score of 3231. Company G, led by Captain Blythe P. L. Carden, took third place with 3229.

Complete totals: Co. F 1st team, 3293; 2nd Bn. 1st team, 3231; Co. G 1st team, 3229; Co. G 2d team, 3061; 2d Bn. 2d team, 3050; Co. F 2d team, 3017; Co. C, 3002; Service Co., 1918; Co. B, 1189.

The regimental gold medal, based on individual scores in the match, goes to Pvt. Osborne, Co. E, with a score of 578. Lieutenant Knight, Co. F, was second with 569, and Corp. Clark, Co. E, third with 567.

In the pistol match, Company D's team made a phenomenal advance from third place to take the prize after the final shoot. Corp. John R. Young of Company H won the Penfold gold medal for individual high score with a total of 261.

First three team totals: Co. D, 1310; Co. M, 1297; Co. H, 1296.

Five highest individual scores: Corp. Young, Co. H, 261; Sgt. Crumlish, Co. D, 246; Sgt. Gertz, Co. H, 243; Corp. Peterkin, Co. M, 242, and Sgt. Klemann, Co. D, 241.

THE LEGION

By FREDERIC T. CARDOZE

Sons who the scourge of oppression relieved,
Sons who shell-riddled objectives relieved,
Your sabres of courage to vict'ry have cleaved!

Sons of the serious, sons of the gay,
Sons of the modest and sons of display,
Prepare other floods of invasion to stay!

Sons of all climates and sons of all creeds,
Sons of the rose bushes, sons of the weeds,
Though slow 'roused to action, you're mighty in deeds.

Sons of the wealthy and sons of the poor,
Sons of the Saxon and sons of the Moor,
Together you learned to obey and endure.

Sons of the nation of leisure and trade,
Sons of the collar and sons of the spade,
March on in one column in glory's parade!

Sons of the ghetto and sons of the plain,
Sons of obscure and illustrious strain,
You are linked in a loyal, invincible chain!

LO, THE POOR COMMANDING OFFICER

Among the major problems of the National Guard Company Commander (the major problem, you might say) is that of maintaining the strength of his company. In order to perform that sometimes Herculean task he has, frequently, to accept for enlistment men whose character and fitness, other than physical, cannot be successfully investigated. It may be argued that such an applicant should not be accepted; but it must be remembered that only a Company Commander knows that moment of stark panic when his company has gone under strength, and further losses loom. It is during that time of weakness and great need that the undesirable and irresponsible man gets into the company.

The C. O. then finds an habitual delinquent, a trouble-maker, or a deserter on the roster, and all the machinery of administration must be put in motion to punish, or get rid of, the offender. It will be said that the C. O. has no one but himself to blame for this state of affairs, and nowhere will there be sympathy or a kind word for him. That is untrue and unkind. Sane, fair-minded criticism will suggest the obvious, sensible remedy, instead of damning a man for doing, not what he chose to do, but what he was forced to do.

No one (praise the Lord!) can predict which way a young man will jump during his initial three-year hitch. When he comes along to enlist you can be sure of only one thing: i. e., that he wants to enlist. Only that and nothing more. Any one of several reasons may have prompted him; but the usual one is the ever bright lure of military service, as understood by one who has never had any. It has been whispered that an occasional low fellow might enlist for the sole purpose of absconding with a shirt and a pair of shoes. No one, of course, could credit such bleak lunacy. . . . But it does serve to expose the fact that the new men are a great, unknown quantity, and we all know that the harassed C. O. does not, as a rule, number among his accomplishments the fine art of crystal-gazing. Is it not reasonable, then, to suggest that the recruit be placed in a state of probation, where the goats could be separated from the sheep (pardon the metaphor, brother rookies), before they be assigned to any company? The earnest recruit, anxious to serve his state and his country, will be glad to serve a period in a recruit detachment, whence, having satisfied his Detachment Commander, he can spring fullpanoplied, all set for fun, fight or a foot-race.

Such an organization would also serve as a reservoir upon which companies under strength could draw. As things are now, when a company goes under strength and it becomes necessary to fill vacancies without delay, companies above strength are asked to transfer men to their unfortunate companions. It is a known fact that none but habitual delinquents and men actually in desertion are ever transferred under those harrowing circumstances, and the poor C. O. is in as bad a plight as ever. As a matter of fact, no men have been transferred at all! Only the responsibility of dropping men for desertion or catching and punishing them has been transferred. This is a particular unsavory variation of the old army game of "passing the buck."

The writer realizes that the adoption of the Recruit Detachment system will not act as a cure-all. He has no experience as a crusader, no axe to grind and no bets to win or lose. Only pride of service with the Guard and a sincere regard for its welfare prompt this unsought contribution. That and the fact that he is a First Sergeant.

47th VETERAN ASSOCIATION

Veterans of three wars were present at the recent dinner of the Veteran Association, held at the 27th Division Train armory. Greetings were received from the commanding officers of the 107th and 369th Infantry and 102nd Medical, and from numerous officers of the regular army. Major Robert H. Platz, the new Train Commander, and his officers attended.

Colonel Andrews Dies Suddenly

Colonel James M. Andrews of Brookline, Mass., formerly commander of the 105th Infantry, 27th Division (New York National Guard) in the World war, died suddenly while attending a class reunion at West Point, June 10th. Colonel Andrews, who was formerly a resident of Schenectady, had been a resident of Brookline for the past few years.

Colonel Andrews was 61 years old. He was born in Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

After his graduation from West Point with the class of 1890 he was assigned as a second lieutenant in the Fifth Cavalry. He resigned from the United States army in November, 1892, to enter the employ of the General Electric Company at Schenectady. While there, he joined the New York National Guard.

He was captain of Company E of the old Second Artillery (later the 105th Infantry), was advanced successively to major, lieutenant colonel and colonel and in the latter rank took his regiment overseas with the 27th Division.

PERSHING CAPS FOR THE GUARD

Funds to the amount of $196,000 have been made available to the Quartermaster General, Major General John L. DeWitt, by the Chief of the Militia Bureau, Major General William G. Everson, for the manufacture of 150,000 Pershing caps which were recently authorized for the National Guard. Serge cloth will be used for the manufacture of the caps which will be of the latest approved pattern. As soon as manufactured issue will be started to the National Guard.

As funds become available for the purpose, additional Pershing caps will be manufactured and issued with a view to providing the new cap for the entire National Guard during the fiscal year 1931. The old style short visored cap which has heretofore been issued detracted from the neat appearance of the uniform of National Guardsmen to such an extent that many of them purchased the Pershing cap from personal funds.

JULY, 1930

WHEN YOU RETURN TO THE ARMORY

NOW that field training is in full swing, units are finishing every two weeks and returning to their home stations. When units return home from camp after a successful training period there is always a tendency to let up on the regular training work for several weeks. Both officers and men are inclined to be a little stale and it is hard to get started again.

At this time there are several important duties to which the company or detachment commander can turn.

The records of the unit will be found to need careful inspection and revision. The personnel records are particularly important and should be checked carefully to see that the data given on Form 100 is correct.

While in camp the company equipment has received rough service. Some of it may be broken, and it is usually full of dust and dirt. All of this material should be laid out and inspected. Chests and cases should be emptied and repacked. At the time this is done the supply officer should make a list of his shortages so that a requisition to replace this equipment may be made at once. Delay in submitting requisitions incurs a possibility of their not being filled on account of lack of funds. It must be understood that supply departments cannot fill requisitions for National Guard units unless there are Militia Bureau funds on hand to cover the cost of the articles.

The individual equipment and clothing of the enlisted men should be carefully inspected. Worn out clothing, belts, pack carriers, canteens, etc., should be placed on a survey at once so that this can be approved and new equipment issued before the next camp or other ordered duty comes up.

Next the program for the armory drill period should be studied, schedules made and instructors assigned. As one can readily see the first few drill periods after camp should be well occupied in clearing decks for well organized winter work.

All training and other preparations must be carried on holding always in mind the preparation of units for defense in time of war.

FOLLOWS IN HIS FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS

JAMES J. WADSWORTH, son of Ex-U. S. Senator James Wolcott Wadsworth and Alice Hay Wadsworth, who has been nominated a second lieutenant in the Headquarters Troop, 121st Cavalry, is following in the footsteps of his illustrious father who was formerly a lieutenant in the Geneseo cavalry troop of which Sergeant Wadsworth has been a member for over a year. Young Wadsworth was born in Groveland, N. Y., twenty-five years ago and graduated from Yale in 1927. He will make a fine appearance as an officer being 6 feet 4 and weighing 200 pounds. His father, as chairman of the Military Affairs Committee while serving twelve years in the U. S. Senate, was a great friend of the service always behind sound, constructive legislation for the adequate defense of the country.

AN exchange says: "Both the National Guard and Regular Army will perform, and have performed, many public services not even remotely connected with war. They are organized and disciplined bodies with high ideals of service, and are frequently found at scenes of disaster, rendering aid and comfort along strictly humanitarian lines."

THE following appeared in a recent issue of the Oswego Daily Times: "A statistical analysis of the recent practice scores at Camp Smith in 1929, is made by Captain John H. Burns, Infantry D. O. L., U. S. A., of this city, in an article appearing in the May number of 'The New York National Guardsman,' a military service magazine, published in the interests of the New York Guard. Captain Burns is inspector-instructor with the 10th New York Infantry, with headquarters at Schenectady. He is a graduate of the Oswego Normal School and Columbia University, and was a newspaper man and teacher before entering the army several years ago."

General Haskell's Editorial

THE GOVERNOR'S REVIEW

GOVERNOR'S Day Review held at Van Cortlandt Park on June 7th was in my opinion and in the opinion of many very competent judges one of the finest performances that the National Guard has ever put up and one that, in many ways should do us much good in many quarters.

I congratulate all of the troops which participated on the showing that they made and I wish to express to them my appreciation of the smoothness with which the whole affair ran off. Very careful work had been done in advance to ensure the success of all arrangements but without the discipline and training of the troops who carried out the plans, the best of plans would have been futile. I consider that no serious criticism could be made of any feature of the afternoon, and to move some twelve thousand troops with all of their equipment through city traffic, have them all in their places at the appointed time, and after the passage in review to march them off the field and put them on their trains for home stations without delaying other troops behind them was a job of no small proportions.

Military observers who appreciated these difficulties were outspoken in their praises of our success, and also were most enthusiastic in regard to the appearance and marching of our men and the excellence of all material.

There were some, I know, who questioned the wisdom of the orders to parade in full dress uniform. I feel sure that the spectacle of all of the different distinctive uniforms convinced them that the decision was a correct one. Every year we see new organizations appearing in full dress and I wish to congratulate our newest recruit, in this respect, the 244th Coast Artillery, on the fine appearance they made in their new uniform worn for the first time on Memorial Day and for the second time on this parade. It was neat, attractive and a success in every way.

Our infantry and all dismounted troops looked well, marched well and presented exceptionally full ranks. The size of the regiments was commented on by many observers.

Mention should also be made of the fine appearance made by our mounted troops, the 101st Cavalry and 105th Field Artillery. The advance that we have made in the last fifteen years in the care and appearance of our animals has become now so much a matter of course that we are apt to overlook it, but it never fails to impress me. The 101st Cavalry had an especially difficult job to reach the reviewing field and performed it well.

I have a feeling however that the highest citation of the day should go to our motorized troops. Every spectator spoke of the excellent appearance and the operation of our motors. When one realizes how "cranky" the modern gasoline engine can be upon occasions, our perfect score in getting all by without a hitch was a remarkable achievement. While all who had motors share in this credit the 258th Field Artillery takes the lion's share on account of the amount of material they paraded and its perfect condition.

The 27th Division Trains following them in compact formation and with their good looking trucks put a nice finish upon the march past.

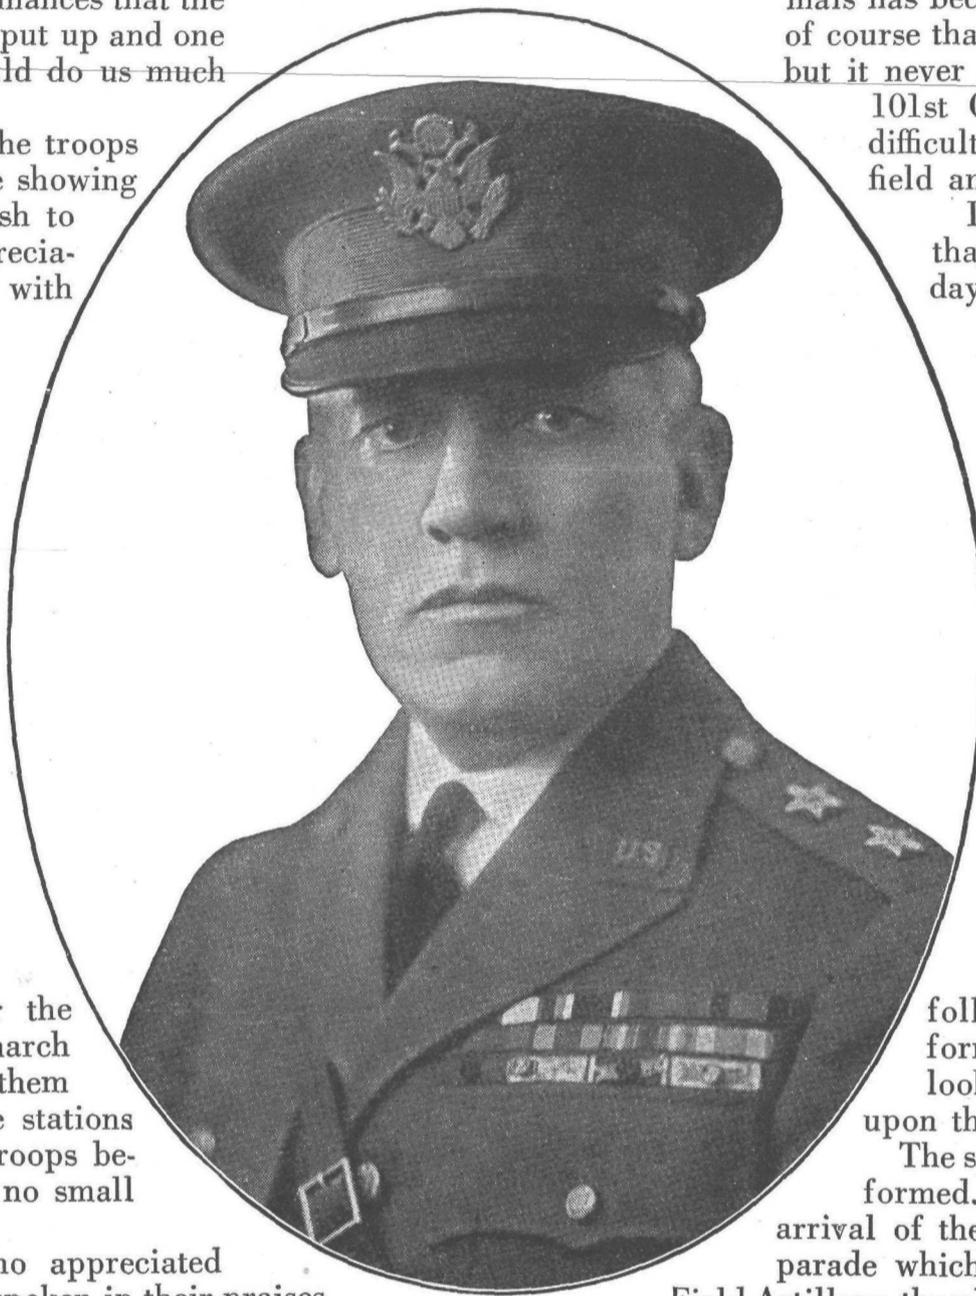

The special duties were well performed. The cannon salutes on the arrival of the Governor and at evening parade which were fired by the 105th

Field Artillery, the playing of the flourishes and march by the band of the 107th Infantry, and the ceremony of evening parade by the 71st Infantry all were well and promptly performed. On account of their detail for this ceremony the 71st Infantry had an especially long and trying day. Their reward is in the excellence of the ceremony as they performed it and their knowledge that this fact was appreciated by all spectators (especially the military spectators) and by all of their comrades in the Guard.

The first Governor's Day since 1915 was a distinct success. At reasonable intervals I believe that all feel that it should be repeated. In carrying out our program we did much, we learned much and I feel sure we gained much.

Major General.

10th INFANTRY

The many friends of Howard E. (Pop) Marston throughout the State, in the American Legion and the "Forty and Eight" will be interested to know that he is again in active service with the 10th Infantry.

"Pop" has a very interesting and varied military career and his service makes him a most valuable addition to the staff of the regimental commander, as assistant plans and training officer. Captain Marston enlisted in 1915 with the famous Troop B, 1st Cavalry, N. Y. N. G., and with this outfit saw service on the Mexican Border. From the Border he went overseas with the converted troop as part of the 106th Machine Gun Battalion. While this unit was holding a defensive position in the Mt. Kemel sector "Pop" received a nasty injury which sent him to the hospital for several months. It was thought for a time the shell explosion would rob him of his hearing, but under the efficient care of Base Hospital 33 and a "Buddy" of his in that unit, Jack Winters, Captain Marston came around all right.

On his discharge from service he accepted a commission in the Officer Reserve Corps where he was active from 1921 to 1926. In the latter year, because of new obligations and a new business undertaking, the captain resigned. The men and officers who know Captain Marston are delighted to hear of his commission with this regiment.

"LCO" NOTES—We regret the loss of Lieutenant John J. Bradley, who recently resigned, on account of business reasons. While Lieutenant Bradley has been with us but a short time, he was a most efficient and popular officer.

Last month L Company gave a card party, which was a social and financial success. A good many who expected to attend were unfortunately kept at home by the Long Island Railroad tie-up that evening, but on the whole we had a good crowd.

Of course we attended the rally in Van Cortlandt Park on June 7th. The attendance of our company was excellent, especially on a Saturday, which is the heaviest working day for a number of the boys.

We have selected the tune for a company song, and we are now trying to find some words. Sgt. Deasy, the artist of the company, can't seem to help us out, so we are looking for a good poet to write us a "pome."

Several trips have been made to Peekskill for the purpose of improving rifle marksmanship, under the guidance of Captain Crocker.

Lieutenant Harrington, our supply officer, is busy with preparations which tend toward camp and is thinking of issuing a questionnaire of "What Did You Forget This Time?" in the hope that everybody will remember not to forget.

S'long, everybody. See you next month!

We invite inquiries on distinctive dress and service uniforms for officers and enlisted men. Extended time payments can be arranged to suit your convenience.

a long hard day down at camp. And Earl's dishes certainly tickle the palate. "When do we eat, Earl?"

A detail from this company had the honor of taking part in a Memorial Service in one of the churches here in Rochester on the Sunday previous to Memorial Day. Under the leadership of Lieutenant Callin the men did their part very well in the unveiling of the tablet in memory of the Church's World War dead.

The company goes on the range Sundays for practice firing with the machine gun and pistol. Some of the new men have had instruction with the pistol on the indoor range at the armory and have proven themselves future marksmen. If we have as many machine gunners as we have future pistol marksmen in the recruits this is going to be a big year for Co. H.

174th INFANTRY

By winning the regimental indoor rifle match for the third consecutive time, Company F becomes the permanent owner of the beautiful Veteran's Trophy that has been adorning Company F's room for the past two years. Although the company was given a close race by 2nd Bn. Headquarters Company the F men succeeded in again emerging victorious.

Much of the credit for the splendid showing of 2nd Bn. Headquarters Company can be attributed to the conscientious and capable training of its commanding officer, Lieutenant Wallace, who incidentally received his basic instruction in rifle marksmanship while a member of Company F.

First Lieutenant Geo. C. Knight is still maintaining his record as the "shootingest" officer in the State by annexing another "gold medal" for being one of the best pistol shots in the State of New York. He won the regimental pistol contest as well as so many other prizes of silver, bronze and gold during the year, that his wife has threatened to leave him unless he moves into a house large enough to give him another room to display his trophies.

Company F rifle range is a busy place every week-end. Every member of the company must shoot the entire D course through at least four times before camp, and every available minute is put to good use in developing and improving each man's ability with the service rifle. A great deal of time and money has been spent on the company's rifle range at Clarksburg this Spring, and the facilities offered the men are even greater than last year. The service rifle range is in splendid shape, and every range up to and including 600 yards is available at all times. A special smaller range for the small bore and pistol are so laid out that they can be used simultaneously without interfering with the big range.

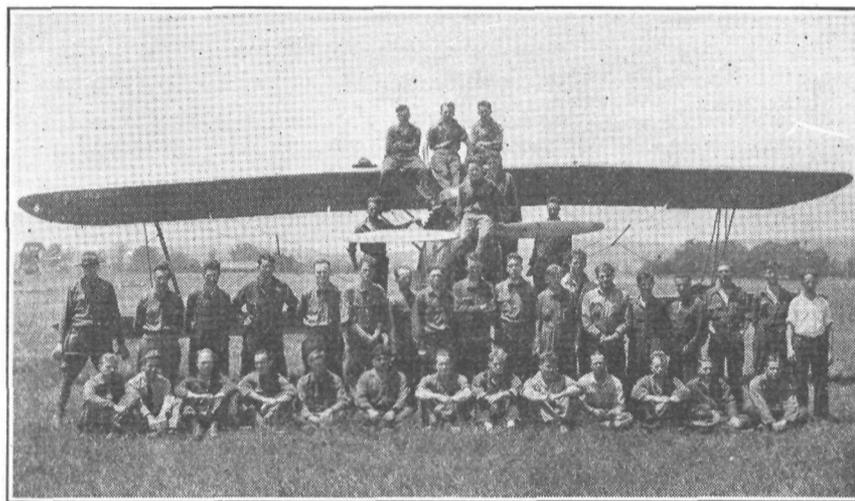

102d OBSERVATION SQUADRON

In this write-up of squadron news I am going to tell of the things that have happened recently, of those that are happening, and of some of the things that everyone interested in the outfit is hoping will happen in the future.

All the commissioned officers are studying correspondence courses on topics pertaining to military aviation. They have finished the first three sub-courses and are going strong.

Captain Rector has started a non-coms' school of instruction. He has given two lessons and the third is being prepared. The first topic was on the organization of the army, the ways in which it serves the country in peace, as well as in war, and the activities of an observation squadron. The second, the school of a soldier and the third, now under way, calls for each man taking the course to write a thesis on "The Fundamental Principles For The Employment Of The Air Service." In the future the Captain plans to give lessons dealing with the construction and maintenance of aeroplanes, also navigation and such subjects appropriate to men interested in aviation and belonging to an air unit. This school is open to any of the enlisted personnel who wish to advance themselves and are sufficiently interested to attend regularly.

Lieut. Grimes has returned to the outfit after an absence of about a year. Lieut. Youmans has been flying frequently since he was recommissioned a pilot a short time ago. Our newest pilot is Lieut. Hunt B. Smith. Lieut. Smith has just received his commission. He was formerly an enlisted man.

The squadron furnished a formation of three ships to escort the first of the Gold Star Mothers as they sailed down the bay for France. Major Vaughn, our commanding officer, flew the leading plane. Lieut. Appel of our outfit and Major Sloane, commanding officer of the 44th Division Aviation New Jersey National Guard, flew the other two ships.

The squadron was asked to fly a formation over the memorial exercises held at St. George, S. I., on Memorial Day. The squadron is always willing and ready to furnish such a formation and a five ship formation was on hand at the proper time. The enlisted men marched in the parade being led by Captain Rector and Lieut. Tribuis.

One of our Falcons flew over the outboard motor boat race around Staten Island and reported the progress of the boats by radio so that people at the club landing and various other places could know the position of the boats at all times. All the Commodores and Rear Admirals of the club were very enthusiastic and greatly pleased with this stunt and begged for a promise of a plane to take part in their next race. So when the next race is under way listen for the latest reports as they will be given from our ship. Lieut. Grimes gave the description of the race from the plane. Incidentally Sgt. George Whittich, one of our permanent mechanics at Miller Field, finished fifth. Lieut. Appel piloted the radio ship, following the racing boats around the entire course. Lieut. Grimes reported the capsizing of one of the boats and the occupants were picked up nearly as soon as they hit the water.

Two of our Falcons have been at Middletown air depot being reconditioned and equipped with night flying equipment. We are getting an air compressor tank and outfit complete. This is a welcome bit of new equipment as it will aid greatly in cleaning our expensive motors and equipment of that sort, thereby keeping everything in better condition. It will also be used to dope and Duco the ships. This extra attention gives added protection to the exterior of the ships thereby making them last longer. We also have received some new radio equipment which will receive a good work-out in the two weeks' training period this summer. This equipment consists of Inter-phones to connect pilot and observer and some ground sets. We have also received puff targets and equipment to be used in camp while co-operating with the artillery. A demonstration will be held June 23rd as a means of obtaining proper practice before using this equipment in camp.

Our armory is repainted inside greatly changing its interior for the better. New stock rooms and a new room for the permanent mechanics have been built in the hangar. The headquarters shack is to be renovated and linoleum laid on the floors. Steam heat is to be put in. The field is being plowed, graded and reseeded one-half at a time so that flying can go on as usual. The bath house on the beach has been repaired and the beach cleaned. Many people have been seen swimming or sunning themselves there even at this early date and I suppose that by the time this article is printed the beach will be crowded.

Lieut. Gates has worked out a distinctive paint job for our ships and one ship has been painted so far. All the rest will be done over in the near future since official permission has been obtained. The Wings remain the prescribed yellow color, the fusilage is painted a royal blue and gold, the air service colors. The yellow forms an arrow pointing toward the radiator which, with the cowling, is blue. The wheels and struts are painted silver. The propellor tips have a band of blue and gold and the backs are blued slightly to prevent glare to the pilot. The tail surfaces are the same as on all army ships, yellow vertical fin and flippers, and red, white and blue rudder. The ship is a really pleasing sight and is painted to represent the 102nd Observation Squadron exclusively.

Lieut. Gates is also working on a new insignia to replace the old one, but nothing has been definitely decided about it yet.

The record firing for the year was done after the parade on Memorial Day. The boys made good scores but were a long time getting to fire. The firing was supervised by Major T. S. Mahoney of the Ordnance Department. He was assisted by Sgt. Marshall and some of his armament section.

The War Department has just authorized over-seas caps for enlisted men in air service outfits. Most of the boys already have theirs.

Lieut. Gates was up at Pine Camp a short time ago to help the quartermaster get the field there in shape for this summer's camp. He assisted in the laying out of two new runways 100 by 2,000 feet in size. The outfit goes to camp July 27th and returns August 10th.

Sgt. Fuller is starting a glider club for the enlisted men of the outfit. By this time you probably have heard more about this, if you haven't, see Sgt. Fuller.

There is plenty of action and enthusiasm at Miller Field and it is the plan of those in charge to make the 102nd Observation Squadron the best National Guard Air Unit in the country. If everything is left to our Commanding Officer, Adjutant, and Instructor, it is an impossible job. However, if every man steps in and does his part the result desired will be obtained with a minimum of effort. So let everyone get going to make our outfit second to none.

(Illustrations—Major Vaughn, Commanding 27th Division Aviation and second living American ace; and a group of men who served on crews in camp at Miller Field in July, 1929. Both pictures were taken by the 102nd Photo Section attached to the outfit.)

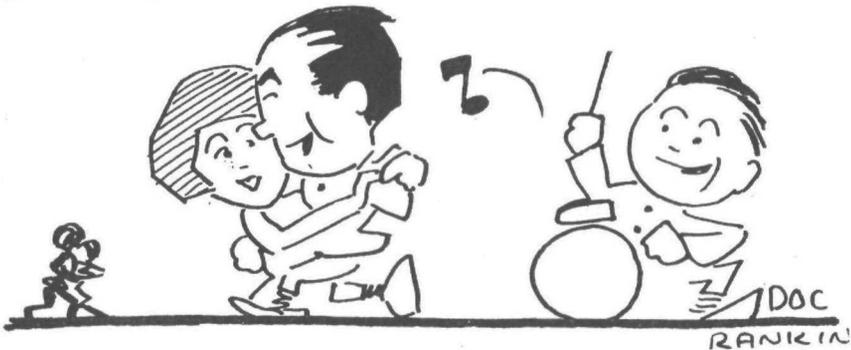

245th COAST ARTILLERY

BATTERY E—Everybody's mother dressed him up and sent him to the Armory on Drill Night. So we had our own little Promotion Day. As a result six men now have to go to the expense of purchasing stripes—one for each arm. Six privates will now be addressed at home, at their places of business, and occasionally at the Armory, as First Class Privates! These men, whose never-ceasing struggle for recognition was finally recognized, who spent many weary hours after ten o'clock waiting patiently to take the Second and First-Class Gunners' Exams are, Edward Daniels, Harold Geyer, Louis Levy (former Battery M corporal), Alfred McArthur, Howard Stehn, and Arthur Weiner. It is oddly coincidental that all six should be first class athletes as well. Eddie Daniels is the regimental baseball catcher; Harold Geyer held military records for the "hundred" and "two-twenty"; Louis Levy is the present obstacle racing M. A. L. champion; Alfred McArthur was the runner-up in the 1000 yard M. A. L. novice race; Howard Stehn has held the M. A. L. mile walking title for the past two years, and Arthur Weiner, well, the less said about him the better. You know how it is when a "guy" gets a girl.

Battery E has three regular players on the regimental baseball team. Top Kick Elmer Bratton, whose pitching ability is known and most highly respected, pegs 'em from the port side. Sgt. Bob Simmons is the third baseman, but volunteers to fill in at anything, including umpiring. Eddie Daniels, as has been mentioned above, is the catcher. Eddie's throw to second is something to watch, admire and cause speculation. Buy Radio, it's good for a quarter-point rise. The battery is right in this battery.

It took us a long time, but it was well worth the wait. Our battery room is now completely furnished. A lovely (fear not, it's strong, too!) rug, a radio that gets Amos and Andy at seven o'clock on the dot! Floor lamps, artistically strewn about the room, and, what is most important, beautiful, brass cuspidors. We can hardly wait for the next review.

'EL RAIZERS OF "L"—A few months ago we published an article on memories of preceding camp tours. We received about twenty requests for more, that is, ten from various members, three from the first sergeant and seven from the writer. Well, nothing like trying, so here goes a couple of them.

All the old timers will remember Bethon, the lad who was quite a whistler. One day, just before firing service, he became a bit nervous and remarked that he wished he had a smoke. Sgt. Sullivan, of the regulars, overheard him and offered him a wad of chewing tobacco. Bethon looked at it in a dubious manner and making up his mind took a bite that could have choked a horse. A few minutes later the first service shot roared out. The close-out shows Bethon with a very wry face, opening an empty mouth and rubbing his stomach. Sgt. Sullivan's second offer of a "chaw" was promptly declined.

Then, many will remember Benny Salzman's inimitable characterizations of Lon Chaney, gorillas, and other beasts and persons. Benny was at his peak one day during a mock review. From nowhere he appeared in a complete Russian General's outfit, beard and all. Now, whoever saw a Russian general without a horse? Ah! But then you don't know Benny very well. He was missing about an hour and then he appeared, mounted upon a huge grey jackass or mule. Nobody ever really found out what it was. Glory was his until said jackass converted himself into a steeplechase horse. A great time was had by all except the rider.

Getting away from the subject of camp, we recently looked over a few copies of Battery L News of 1929, and found a bit that we will recopy because we like it.

IT'S SOME JOB!

Getting out an article is no picnic.
If we print jokes, they say we are silly,
If we don't, people say we are too serious,
If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety,
If we publish matter from other papers, they say we are too lazy to write,

If we stay on the job, we ought to be out rustling news,
If we go out rustling news, we don't show proper appreciation.

Someone, like as not, will say that this is reprinted and originally taken from another paper.

IT WAS!

Now that our drill season is drawing to a conclusion, it is only fitting and proper that we glance over a few of our accomplishments of the 1929-1930 season. Here they are, short and snappy as possible.

This is the first complete year that "L" has navigated the River of Achievement with Captain William Pabst at the helm. He immediately qualified as an expert pilot. The dances and affairs we ran were huge successes from all angles. We put a team in the Battalion Games that brought home the bacon. In every relay event we furnished attractive teams that garnered their share of medals. We had a good team in the Bowling Tournament but it suffered from involuntary absences. We came out fourth.

In the show presented by the regiment, the "Pleasure Seekers" we furnished three leading players of the cast. In our Regimental Boxing Tournament we took it on the chin it is true, as we didn't turn out any champs, but our boys put up a real fight before they acknowledged defeat, or the judges did it for them. In the Federal Inspection we obtained 100% attendance and the remarks were all "Very Satisfactory." Then in one of the keenest competitions held in many a year, we placed second in the Regimental Prize Drill of Crack Squads. Was our skipper proud of us? You bet, but he dropped a hint that we can do better than that.

I've got to catch that boat for Fisher's Island, so adios! Don't miss our article in the September issue and we'll let you know what a great time we had at camp. Whoopee!

Colonel William R. Pooley was grand marshal of the huge parade which marked the National Turnfest in Buffalo, June 24. Thousands of Turners from all over the United States marched in the affair. All gymnastic competitions in the convention were held in the 174th armory. It was equipped with gymnastic apparatus for 40 divisions.

Eight officers and five enlisted men of the 174th Infantry were on the list of commendations for the annual Federal muster and inspection. Major Joseph H. Robinson, regimental plans and training officer, led the list, with Major George McK. Hall, medical detachment commander; Captain Roderick H. Macgregor, assistant plans and training officer; Captain Samuel A. Brown, Company E; Captain Blythe P. L. Carden, Company G, and First Lieutenants Arnold W. Brecht, Lynn D. Wallace and William M. Crandall, First, Second and Third Battalion headquarters companies, respectively. The enlisted men were Sgt. Eldridge Alvord, Second Battalion Headquarters company; First Sgt. Ben Gossett and Sgt. Harry E. James, Company E; Supply Sgt. Walter Sattler, Company G, and Corp. William G. Cook, Regimental Headquarters company.

Three 174th Infantry lieutenants, recently graduated from the Infantry School at Fort Benning, were guests of honor at an officers' dinner at the armory last month. They were First Lieutenant Earl R. Chappell, Company G, and Second Lieutenants Richard L. Pooley, Second Battalion Headquarters company, and Preston M. Holmes, Company D.

Barber: "I don't think so, sir. I've only been here six months."

Battery Commander (to dumb Rookie): "What are you doing looking in that range finder? Do you think it's a moving picture machine?"

Dumb Rookie (observing pretty girls through R. F.): "No, sir. But there are several pretty pictures moving in this, just the same."

Boss: "Want a job, eh? Well, there's not enough doing around here to keep a man busy for an hour a day."

Applicant: "Just the kind of a place I'm looking for, mister."

—Good Hardware.

Captain (to worthless buck): "How do you get that way, going out to parade with buttons off your coat?"

—American Heating Merchant.

Teacher: "Use these words in a sentence: deface, defense, detail."

They: "Deface of the cat gets through defense before detail."

The Mountaineer's Wife: "Hank, ye've gone barefoot to the last two balls. Put on them rubber boots."

"Gus," said Bill, as he caught up with him on the way back to camp, "Are all the rest of the boys out of the wood yet?" "Yes," said Gus. "All six of them?" "Yes, all six of them." "And they're all safe?" "Yep," answered Gus, "they're all safe." "Then," said Bill, his chest swelling, "I've shot a deer."

Fresh Frosh: "Well, Hannibal crossed the Alps by means of passes." —The Shoreline.

Barber: "Your hair needs cutting badly."

Soldier: "No it doesn't; you cut it badly just a week ago."

Mrs. Knagg: "How did you find your husband when you returned from your vacation last summer?"

Mrs. Legge: "Oh, I stumbled over him while cleaning up in the cellar."

Private: "There, would you ever think I bought that car second-hand?"

Keep-Out: "Hell no. I thought you made it yourself."

Mrs. Mosquito: "Where is your daughter?"

Mrs. Housefly: "She just went to the front door for a screen test."

The doctor answered the phone and grabbed his hat. "I must hurry, this man says he can't live without me."

"Just a minute," said his wife who had picked up the phone, "That call is for Ethel."

The recruit was having a tough time with the bugle calls. He arose to the tune of first call and spent his first army day trying to get the various clarion notes straightened out. Finally, at the end of a tough day, he heard still another call.

"What was that one?"

"That was lights out," explained the sergeant.

"What! Do we even pet by that damned bugle?"

10th INFANTRY

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All ye mud crushers, mule skimmers, Air Hawks, and others whom "We" care not to mention, but please don't be offended, because in the end who wins the "War"; the Infantry!!!! of course.

(We are firm believers in Radio Programs sponsored by the Recruiting Bureau, N. Y. N. G.) Let's go!

Hark to Station CO-L-10, the "Voice of 'EL' the 10th in their usual monthly broadcast."

We lined up at 8:00 o'clock Friday nite, May 2, 1930. Saluting the old members of the Utica Citizens Corps and then we sat down to enjoy a banquet given to us by the Veteran organization. "Al" Sittig furnished the music and entertainment. Colonel H. J. Cookingham presided and he commended the company on their excellent work. One of the features of this banquet and get-together was the appearance of a squad of men in the old U. C. C. Dress Uniform. During the dinner 100% Duty Medals were presented to the following members: Captain Guy J. Morelle, 11 years; Pvt. 1st Cl. James D. Clifford, 6 years; Sgt. Earle F. Sherman, 4 years; Cpl. Paul F. Willard, 2 years, and One Year Medals to Pvt. 1st Cl. George H. Rishel, George W. Blair, Samuel F. Morelle, John Di Georgio, Harvey J. Di Georgio, Cpls. Leon A. Castellani, Libio Tritto, Edward W. Gray and Sgts. S. H. Brayton, Moelwyn Jone and Frank Z. Poderis.

At this time we wish to announce that we would like to read about other units of the Tenth Infantry in these columns. News about other organization activities offer good ideas for greater interest in one's own organization.

Few realize the wonderful opportunity THE GUARDSMAN offers as a mouthpiece of good will among guardsmen throughout the state. Every guardsman has an idea about service in the National Guard. For instance, the following is an elaboration on a few statements and opinions which permeated the air surrounding the entrance to the armory one night in May after drill. All coming from 100% members. We can introduce the theme with the question, "WHAT DOES A GUARDSMAN THINK ABOUT THE SERVICE?"

Superior Headquarters are doing everything possible within their power to make the service more attractive.

165th INFANTRY

On Wednesday, May 21, the concert by the Regimental Band was held at the armory under the direction of Bandmaster Clifford E. Ridgely; and the following artists rendered the vocal and instrumental program: Miss Mary Aitken, lyric soprano; Pvt. 1st Class Frank O'Loughlin, clarinet; Mr. Alfred O'Shea, tenor, and the New York City Police Glee Club.

On Monday, May 26th the regiment was reviewed by Brigadier General John J. Phelan, Commanding 93rd Infantry Brigade, during the evening the following awards were made:

Presentation of Appointment Papers to the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., Pvt. 1st Cl. Henry W. Ebel, Company F.

Presentation of Regimental Long and Faithful Service Medals—for 10 Years, Captain Joseph T. Hart, Company F; 1st Lieut. George A. McDonough, 3rd Bn. Hq. Company.

Presentation of State Recruiting Medals—For 25 Recruits, Sgt. Mark L. White, Company M; for 3 Recruits, Sgt. Arnold Fischer, Company B; Sgt. Edward J. Mack, Company B; Sgt. Edward Ward, Company B; Cpl. John H. Kelly, Company B; Cpl. Julian Xiques, Company B; Pvt. 1st Cl. Carl Hansen, Company B; Pvt. 1st Cl. John Vasta, Company B; Pvt. Charles Boyte, Company B.

And once more on Friday, May 30th, Decoration Day, on the return of the regiment to the armory after the parade in honor of our dead soldiers and sailors, Memorial services were held and the Forty-two (42) battle flags of the regiment were brought out and paraded, Taps and To The Colors were sounded and the Alternate Ceremony of the Evening Parade brought all the officers, Colors and guidons to the front, they then marched to the General Edward Duffy Room where the ceremony of the unveiling of the Tablet and Oil Painting and the Dedication of the "General Edward Duffy Room" took place.

The Tablet was unveiled by Miss Catherine H. Duffy; and the painting of General Duffy, by Miss Mary A. Duffy, both daughters of the General. The ceremonies of the Dedication of the Memorial Room were under the direction of Colonel William J. Costigan, the Commanding Officer of the regiment; speeches eulogizing and reminiscent of the late Commander were delivered by General John J. Phelan (former Colonel of this Regiment); Colonel Alexander E. Anderson; Lieut. Colonel Francis P. Duffy, Chaplain of the regiment; Captain Grenville Temple Emmett, Adjutant during the Spanish-American War, 1898; Colonel Charles Healy; Captain Lorillard Reynolds; Captain William G. Massarene; Major Felix J. McSherry, and Mr. Boris Kublanov, the artist who executed the painting. The Tablet is a bronze by Tiffany & Co. and contains the Military Record of General Duffy:

Enlisted June 3, 1867.

1st Lieutenant, March 14, 1871.

Captain, Adjutant, December 31, 1874.

Major, September 10, 1875.

Lt.-Colonel, March 25, 1896.

Colonel, April 13, 1898.

Brevet Brigadier General, August 14, 1903.

Retired, March 12, 1909.

Died, November 27, 1927.

Speaking of General Duffy, Colonel William J. Costigan, the present commander of the regiment who served as an enlisted man and an officer under General Duffy, said:

"No one could do more or give more than General Edward Duffy did for the Sixty-ninth Regiment. He sacrificed everything; the regiment was always uppermost in his mind, and even after his retirement from active service he never lost that whole-hearted interest in the regiment for which he gave health, wealth and intellectual ability.

"In consideration of the great good he did for the regiment and the young men of his day, this room is affectionately dedicated that his memory may last as long as his regiment."

244th COAST ARTILLERY

The pistol team of Company D, 107th Infantry, visited the armory of the 244th Coast Artillery, Wednesday, May 28, and left with the General John J. Byrne Trophy under their belts. The cup had been in the possession of Battery C of the 244th C. A. for the last two years.

The General John J. Byrne Trophy is a cup presented by General Byrne of Coast Artillery Headquarters, and a former member of the old 7th, to be competed for by a company team from the 7th, and a battery team from the 9th. These teams are to be made up of members of one company or battery, and are chosen, in both organizations, under the terms of the shoot, by an elimination match.

The course fired was the regulation dismounted course, shot for qualification. Company D of the 7th shot a total percentage of 82.16, with a score of 1234 points; while Battery C of the 9th shot 78.64 per cent, with 1179.8 points. The high score of the match was Captain G. F. Johnston of the 7th, with 93.3, followed closely by his team-mate, Lieut. D. Aspden, with 93.2. Lieut. E. Carples, also of the 7th, was third with 92.5. Lieut. John E. J. Clare, 258th F. A., was the executive officer of the match, assisted by Lieut. T. F. Hanney for the 244th C. A., and Lieut. George A. Buchanan for the 107th Infantry as scorers.

After the match the visiting officers were entertained by General Byrne, while the men enjoyed the hospitality of Battery C. Later the officers joined the party across the hall to enjoy a light repast and refreshments.

BATTERY E

On Saturday, the 21st of June, the Battery went out on an overnight hike and camped on the farm of Sgt. Patton, a member of Battery E.

We used all of the horses we have, eighteen in number, pulling one section and an escort wagon.

The new recruits had the first experience in camping and messing in the field.

A guard mount was put on by the Non-Coms of Battery E with considerable success; in fact the running of the entire camp was controlled by the Non-Coms as follows: Camp Commander, 1st Sgt. William Eager; Guard Mount, Sgt. Edward Hughes; Adjutant, Sgt. John Reed; Sergeant Major, Sgt. Joseph Pilus as the Old Officer of the Day and Sgt. Albert Rabb as the New Officer of the Day; Cpl. Joseph Janson, Commander of the Guard and 1st Cl. Pvt. Carl Bergman as Sergeant of the Guard; Pvts. Zalzack, Kestler, Dyseven, charge of the reliefs. Cpl. Coverage took charge of the Boy Scout Fife and Drum Corps of the American Legion who were our guests at camp.

The Non-Coms put on a real guard mount. Sgt. Elmer Babcock was chief cook, assisted by Pvts. Joseph Tulley, Ostrander, Crook, Carroll, put on plenty of tasty food. Sgt. Minerley took every man out for 30 minutes of equitation bare back, where every one learned something new; four of the boys walked back to camp, as the horses decided to unload, but the boys are game and are going to try it again.

The first machine gun competition shoot was held between five two-man teams, as follows: No. 1, Captain Monihan and Sgt. Joseph Bloomer; 2, Lieut. Armstrong and Sgt. Babcock; 3, Sgt. Joseph Pilus and Pvt. Carl Bergman; 4. Sgt. John Reed and Sgt. Warren Patton; 5. Sgt. Robert Hinnerley and Sgt. Albert Rabb, the competition was very keen, only having one target, it became so full of holes we could not keep score, but I can safely say that the boys of the Battery would do a lot of damage if called upon to use the machine guns.

On June the 23rd, Battery E received a telegram from General Haskell to fire a salute to Rear Admiral Byrd who would pass Newburgh on the destroyer Brainbridge, with 13 guns. We were able to dig up the ammunition and fired the salute from Washington's Headquarters at 9:38 A. M. daylight saving time, at five second intervals, using two guns manned as follows: officer in charge of firing, Captain Monihan; Chief of Section Instructor, Sgt. John Gibboney; No. 1 Gun, No. 1 man, 1st Sgt. William Eager; No. 2, Pvt. Joseph Tulley; No. 3 or Swabber, Sgt. John Carroll.

No. 2 Gun, No. 1 man, Sgt. Bryant; No. 2 man, Sgt. Joseph Bloomer; No. 3 or Swabber, Pvt. Williams.

Pvt. Neilson of Battery E has received his appointment to West Point and will report on July the first. This will give Battery E four men in West Point at one time. Pvts. Pohl, Spicer and Gutherie who entered the Point last year. Is this a record?

(Ed—Check! We think so!)

156th FIELD ARTILLERY

Recently a party was tendered Captain Leslie E. Babcock, Instructor for the 156th Field Artillery units stationed at Newburgh, Middletown, Peekskill and Mount Vernon, and who has been transferred to Binghamton, N. Y., having been assigned to the 104th F. A.

The Party was held in the "Molly Davenport" Tea Rooms on the Cocheton Turnpike, under the able management of Mrs. Molly Schimpf. Each officer upon entering the dining hall was presented with a boutonniere composed of red, white and blue sweet peas. The rooms were gaily decorated with flags and appropriate bunting. Capt. Babcock was escorted to the place of honor and Major Newsome voicing the sentiment of his (the 2nd

In the Pines at Pine Camp

THE environments surrounding field training at Pine Camp are radically different from soldiering at either Camp Smith or Fort Ontario and we cannot say that the comparison suffers a bit. As its name would imply the men are surrounded with pine trees in all directions, the officers' tents being erected in a pretty grove of various species of trees with enough of the pines to lend that great outdoor nostral refresher so much sought after by the camper. Camp Smith has more of the modern civilized set-up, with plenty of rugged mountains for the rougher maneuvering so bracing to an infantryman, while Pine Camp has vast areas wonderfully suited for cavalry and artillery—miles of sand stretches with light timber growth here and there and ideal places to put up firing ranges of any type, and for maneuvers of the widest scope. A half hour after the severest downpour, troops can go out for any kind of field work without encountering mud, and with dust flying in an hour or two. Of course Fort Ontario furnishes the advantage of the big lake for big gun firing and the men going to that camp meet up with regular Post life.

There is no question but that the troops going to Pine Camp consider that they have the best camp assignment. One must not differ with them too hurriedly, either, for they have some things even ahead of Camp Smith—the frigidaire ice boxes in the company kitchens for one thing.

The Camp Quartermaster, Lieut. John F. Ward, Q. M. Dept., N. Y. N. G., is an unusual Quartermaster. We use the word "unusual" because, traditionally speaking, quartermasters have a way of giving you nothing and of loving the word "no." In Pine Camp, however, all the noes have been changed into co-operation and supply, and a young officer, who is "onto the job" from 6 A. M. until dark, keeps everybody happy, though soldiering.

We have never seen cleaner, more conveniently arranged wash and bath houses and the hot water is always hot. The picket line sheds are the finest in the country, we believe, although of course the writer has not seen them all. Then the Commissary! Never was a finer looking provision store seen—everything invitingly stored with a list of articles, which properly prepared and served could start any company cook after the laurels of a "Waldorf Oscar."

The camp is a model of cleanliness from the outer gates to the far corners of the artillery range, great credit being due to the keen interest taken by Lieut. Ward's assistants, Sgt. Thomas A. Doyle and Sgt. John P. Penn—the former acting as Chief Clerk and the latter Caretaker.

The ammunition house is in charge of Sgt. Edward Brodie of the 105th Field Artillery, who handles all the ammunition from a 45 calibre cartridge to a 155 m/m.

There is now in course of construction, from funds furnished by the War Department, a fifty-target rifle and pistol range and a rolling-target machine gun range which will greatly facilitate the small arms firing part of the field training program of the various organizations training at Pine Camp.

The camp was officially opened by the 101st Cavalry, Colonel James R. Howlett, from Brooklyn and New York City, followed by the 121st Cavalry, Colonel Kenneth Townson, from Rochester, Buffalo, Albany, Syracuse, Utica and Genesee. Brigadier General Mortimer J. Bryant, commanding the 51st Cavalry Brigade, with his staff and Headquarters Troop, came into camp June 22 remaining until July 6, thus covering a week with each regiment of his command.

The other troops training at Pine Camp for the season of 1930 are: June 29 to July 13, the 106th Field Artillery, Colonel Douglas P. Walker, Buffalo; July 13 to July 27, the 105th Field Artillery, Lieut. Colonel Clarence H. Higginson, Bronx and Brooklyn; 52nd Field Artillery Brigade, Brigadier General William F. Schohl, Buffalo and Brooklyn, July 27 to August 10; July 27 to August 10, the 104th Field Artillery, Jamaica, Binghamton and Syracuse; July 27 to August 10, 27th Division Aviation, Miller Field, Staten Island; August 10 to August 24, 156th Field Artillery, Lieut. Colonel John A. Korsch, Newburgh, Middletown, Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Peekskill and Mt. Vernon.

Why

Him: "Men of my type are not running loose."

Her: "Of course not, that is what the police department is for."

Nothing ruins an old car like the neighbor getting a new one.

Keep saving, and your savings will keep you.

If you can't be the big steering wheel at least try and be a good cog.

OUR RUSSIAN
ARMY BRANCH

It may surprise you, as it did us, to learn that the New York National Guard has its own Foreign Legion. It is known officially as the Second Combat Train of the 244th Coast Artillery, and, with the exception of its battery commander, who is an Irishman, it is made up entirely of Russians. It was started something over a year ago, when Alexis Stupenkoff, a taxi-driver in Manhasset, and Peter Rodyenko, a fare of his, got to talking and discovered that both had served in the Imperial army. They decided they ought to do something about reviving their military life. They got permission from the National Guard, drummed up all the veteran army men among their friends, and on February 19, 1929, were officially enrolled as the Russian Battery. It is a pretty dashing organization. Most of the men, even privates, were officers in the old days. Stupenkoff, who is now first sergeant, was wounded six times in various Russian campaigns. Rodyenko is first lieutenant. He was a major in the Russian army, served in China, was decorated many times. Sergeant Diaconoff was a military judge and judge-advocate in Russia; Cpl. Lehovitch's father was an assistant secretary of war under the Czar.

Great punctilio is observed in all their doings. The battery room, in the 244th Regiment armory, in Fourteenth Street, is hung with pictures of General Pershing and the Grand Duke Nicholas. Over the fireplace hangs the organization's coat of arms, crossed cannon superimposed on crossed flags of the United States and Imperial Russia. Wednesday nights they entertain, serve tea in glasses, Russian sandwiches, caviar, kiss ladies' hands, do Cossack sword and dagger dances, drink toasts to their guests, to the Battery, to everyone. Rodyenko plays the piano; Line Sgt. Gsovski, who is a member of the Russian Church choir, sings. For that matter, everybody sings, even the Irish commander, Captain C. L. McGee, who has acquired a pretty good accent in Russian.

—From the New Yorker.

Oh, yes, there was the Scotchman who complained about the reduced taxi fares; he couldn't save so much by walking.

ENLISTED TO TOOT,
LEARNED TO SHOOT,
AND CAPTURED BANDIT

Training in the National Guard just will show itself, even if a man has been out of the military game for some years. On May 5th Charles Heyler was driving his mail truck in the Bronx, when three bandits came around a corner pursued by a large crowd. Heyler speeded up his truck until he became abreast of one of the holdup men and then jumping from his truck started for the armed thief, whom he overpowered and turned over to the police. Heyler was without arms and his prompt and courageous act received great praise from the New York press and the postal authorities.

As might be expected, Heyler turned out to be no novice in the preservation of law and order; his wife informed a reporter that it was a good thing for the holdup man that her husband had no pistol with him, for he had qualified as a marksman in the Seventy-first Infantry.

The records show that Heyler did good duty as a member of the Field Music of the Seventy-first and was good with both the bugle and the pistol. An officer of the Seventy-first, when he heard the story, remarked that if Heyler had had his bugle with him he would probably have first brained the bandit with it and then blown "Taps" over him.

PRESENTATION TO COLONEL EGAN

Colonel Raphael A. Egan who has commanded the 156th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, for the past six years and recently resigned, was presented with a gold wrist watch by the officers and men of the Service Battery of the 156th Field Artillery which is stationed in Peekskill, N. Y., recently, as a token of esteem. The presentation was made at the new stables east of Peekskill where the Battery had assembled for a barbecue and field day.

Captain C. H. Forbush, who commands the Service Battery, made a short talk in which he told of his regret at the resignation of the Regimental Commander, expressed appreciation of co-operation during the past six years under his command and extended an invitation to visit the unit at Peekskill at every opportunity.

MOHAWK IS READY!

The Father of His Country once said: "In times of peace, prepare for war," and many another disciple of preparedness, since that time, has uttered practically the same statement, declaring that the best insurance against war or trouble of any sort is to be adequately prepared.

And so the peace-loving community of Mohawk is going to take a tip from Mr. Washington and the other preparedness boosters.

One would have to search far to find a community less bellicose-looking than Mohawk. Stately trees shade its streets; the homes are well kept and set back from the streets with beautiful lawns before them; the factories hum busily, and trouble of any sort, at least on a large scale, seems more remote than the divergent viewpoints of the naval conferees at London.

Furthermore, in the eastern end of the village rises the castle-like state armory, home of Company I, 10th Infantry, New York National Guard, with nearly a full strength company of doughboys. That in itself might be deemed adequate to handle any emergency—such as a riot.

But, no doubt, reading of the Red disturbances in the metropolis, the Municipal Commission has decided to procure for the police department a brace of riot shot-guns, with tear gas bombs and riot shells.

No trouble may be in sight at present, but Mohawk evidently believes in the old saying: "Forewarned is forearmed." And they are right.

DO YOU KNOW?

By COL. H. A. ALLEN, Inf. (D. O. L.)

That at one time the sergeant major was the third ranking officer in a regiment. In 1649 he was preceded in rank only by the lieutenant colonel and the colonel.

His duties were numerous. In the first place, he was always to have ink, paper and pen about him to take down the colonel's orders which he transmitted to the company sergeants and they in turn to their captains.

He reported daily to the sergeant major general who gave him the general's orders for the day for the regiment.

He informed his colonel and lieutenant colonel of these orders. He inspected the guard while on post, gave out the countersign, or password, and parole, detailed the officers of the watch, and was required to exercise (that is drill) the several companies of the regiment.

In time of battle he formed the regiment into the numbers of "battles" (or battalions) ordered by the colonel. Sometimes he commanded one of these "battles." In addition he had a company (so for that matter did the colonel). He combined in person the present duties of adjutant, inspector, intelligence officer, operations officer, and sergeant major. Finally, according to an old manual, he was supposed to be "learned in the liberal sciences, and must be civil, wise, and discreet." He was considered an officer of the field.

Eventually the word "sergeant" was dropped and he became the major. In a like manner, the sergeant major general became the major general. In turn the "battles" became the battalions and were the appropriate command of majors. The three "battles" of a regiment were frequently commanded by the colonel (on the right), the lieutenant colonel, and the (sergeant) major.

IMPROVING PINE CAMP

Lieutenant John F. Ward of Albany has been at Pine Camp for some time and with Sgt. P. A. Doyle, who remains at the camp nearly all the time, has been arranging for the handling of the first National Guard outfit, 101st Cavalry of New York City, comprising 700 men, to arrive June 15th for training.

Many improvements will be made to the aviation field. It will be enlarged and graded and two cinder runways, 1,500 feet long, and 300 feet wide, will be laid out. A new firing area for field artillery has also been cleared.

THE NAVY CADETS WIN FROM 107th

In a very close rifle match last month at Annapolis, the U. S. Naval Academy Rifle Team defeated the 107th Regiment Rifle Team, 2,306 to 2,289. The match fired was by teams of ten men at 200 yds. slow and rapid fire and 600 yds. Private Deveraux of the 107th was high rifle with 240 out of 250. The rapid fire strings brought out some brilliant shooting, seven of the 107th men hanging up possible scores and five of the mid-dies. The total rapid fire score of the 107th was 495 out of a possible 500 and the Midshipmen 492.

POPULAR BROOKLYN COLONEL DINNER GUEST

In recognition of the good will which exists between the two organizations, Col. Thomas Fairervis, commanding the 106th Infantry, Brooklyn, was tendered a dinner last month by Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus, at its clubhouse, 1 Prospect Park West. It was the Colonel's first public appearance since submitting to a serious operation recently. Grand Knight Francis A. Madden, who acted as toastmaster, presented the guest of honor with an appropriately engraved platinum wrist watch.

71st REGIMENT LOSES TO WEST POINT

The Army's Rifle Team defeated the 71st Regiment Rifle Team at West Point last month, 2,248 to 2,163.

Bn.), expressed great regret at the loss of such a valuable officer. Among the guests of the evening who extolled the merits of Captain Babcock were Colonel Korschen, Major Bullard and Captain Cassedy. Captain Babcock was presented with a beautiful cigarette case by the toastmaster and chairman of the evening, Captain Huddelson, who with his inveterate wit added spice to the entertainment of the evening.

Songs were sung, stories told, and at the conclusion of the evening's entertainment every one gave the assurance of having had a wonderful time.

Among those present were: Colonel Korschen, Majors Bullard and Newsome, Captains Cassedy, Babcock, Brundage, Paltridge, Monihan, Morse, Thiede, Turiga, Masten and Huddelson, Lieutenants Smith, Williams, Oprey, MacDonald, Lamont Lohead, Jamieson, Armstrong, Woodhams, Flack, Grasheim, Holton, Diddleback, Odell and McDowell.

HOME NEWS

A popular song of a few years ago ran "Gee! It's good to meet a friend from your home town". That sentiment rings particularly true when you are in a foreign country, and General William Graves Bates, former Colonel of the 71st Infantry, got quite a thrill recently while in Paris. He had lighted a cigar and seated himself in an easy chair in his Paris hotel, prepared to enjoy his Sunday paper. Before digging into the news cabled from New York, as no doubt many of us do, he decided to look over the rotogravure section and what should strike his eye but a big picture of his old command, the 71st, as it appeared on Mothers' Day in St. Thomas's church, New York.

It is a safe gamble that the General's chest gained an inch or two with pride, and we wouldn't be at all surprised if a stray tear appeared, when he realized that Paris had sufficient interest in the regiment that had been the idol of his heart for so many years, to run that quarter-page picture.

A similar incident happened in Warsaw, Poland, a few years ago, when Captain Delanoy, formerly of the 71st, bought a paper at a news stand and saw his old regiment being reviewed by Ambassador Claudel of France, in the armory at New York.
