

Syracuse Angler Drowns in Seneca River

Partner Saved As Boat Tips On Sharp Turn

Charles Greene, 36, of 1433 Midland Ave., Syracuse, drowned in the Seneca River about 8:30 p.m. yesterday when the outboard motor boat in which he was riding capsized. Scene of the drowning was about a mile south of Plainville.

Greene's body was recovered with grappling hooks about 11:30 p.m. in about 10 feet of water. Asst. Fire Chief Carl Pickard of Plainville made the recovery.

Greene was riding in a boat with Lawrence Champion, 38, Baldwinsville, when the craft capsized. Champion was rescued by unidentified parties in another boat who witnessed the accident.

Champion said he and Greene had been out on the water for about two hours looking for a good spot to go fishing today.

The boat suddenly turned sharply and capsized.

Champion described Greene as a "poor swimmer." Champion said he was not a good swimmer himself, but managed to keep afloat until rescued.

Searchers found the outboard motor in the river during their dragging operations. They also located the boat and brought that in to shore. It was later pressed into use in the dragging operations. Champion, after recovering from the shock of his harrowing experience, also joined in the search for his companion.

Participating in the dragging operations, which were under the direction of Deputy Sheriffs John Commans and Vic Tucci, were the Baldwinsville Fire Department and Plainville Fire Department and about 40 volunteers. Floodlights were used to light the search area.

A large crowd gathered on the shore to watch the operations. Cars lined the highway on both sides for about a quarter of a mile.

Second Week 200 Scouts at Constantia

Nearly 200 Boy Scouts from Onondaga Council Boy Scouts of America will open the second week of camping at Camp Woodland, near Constantia, today, according to Richard Everill, chairman of the Council Camping and Activities Committee.

The camp, which opened for the summer on July 1 is operating under a Troop Camping plan for the first time. Each troop coming to camp supplies its own leadership and the boys camp as a troop and plan their own program. Every troop sending more than five boys to camp must supply leadership. Troops having five or less scouts going to camp will go into the one Provisional Troop scheduled during the week of Aug. 18.

The scouts, many of whom have had reservations since last fall and winter, will check in at Camp Headquarters and with the camp director and nurse following the noon meal.

Each scout will be examined and the troop assigned to a camping area. Swimming tests will be given in the afternoon so each scout may be classified according to his ability.

A huge campfire in the vicinity of the old Indian Springs will mark the official opening of the second period of camp. The campfire will be comprised of introduction of camp staff members, songs, stunts and a brief outline of what the boys may expect in the way of program during their stay.

Mr. Everill stated the boys will have the benefit of an exceptionally well trained staff under the direction of Robert E. Temple as camp director and George H. Stata and M. Edward Ridgeway as assistant camp directors.

Every scout will continue to have the opportunity to do outdoor cooking, boating, swimming, hiking, fishing, craft work, trail camping, archery and

Fulton Faces P&C's Show Cause Suit

FULTON—The first of what might prove to be a series of court battles over milk distribution in Oswego County will be heard in Supreme Court in Syracuse Monday.

The P&C Family Foods Market has brought a show cause order against Dr. Frank Edward Fox, city health officer. Fox denied an application by the firm to bring in milk from outside the city for sale in its store.

C. W. Sadd, P&C general manager, in the court order charges the Fulton dealers with having "illegally combined and conspired" to "fix the prices of milk and cream" sold to the P&C and other Fulton retail stores.

Sadd claims the store prices are artificially high, that the P&C is able to sell milk in other cities at from 16 to 19 cents a quart and must sell it in Fulton at 23 cents, and that retail store prices and home delivery prices are substantially the same in Fulton.

Battle Began

The milk distribution fight began publicly in Oswego when two grocers charged the Oswego milk dealers with monopolistic practices. The two grocers then applied to Dr. James Grant, city health officer there, for a permit to bring milk into the city.

Grant has not yet decided on these applications.

The P&C also applied for a milk dealers permit in Oswego and Grant rejected the application on the grounds that he could not check the source of supply lists and no affidavit to the effect that the milk was good was submitted.

Sadd said last week the company had not yet decided whether to bring court action against Grant. It was speculated in Oswego that the P&C would reapply with affidavits, and this permit was denied, would launch court proceedings.

Permit Rejected

Fox, in denying the P&C application, left no out. Quoting a city Board of Health resolution to the effect that the health officer must inspect the milk source and produce, Fox rejected the permit.

City Atty. J. Sheridan Hillic said Fox's rejection of the permit would be defended on these grounds. He said the P&C application listed the Dairymen's League in Syracuse and the Athens Dairy Co. of Sayre, Pa. as one and a half miles south of Hamilton.

Hillic said these plants were outside the practicable area of inspection for the city health officer.
