

14

AND 104th Regiment.

This regiment suffered severely in the battle of Wednesday of last week. Being in the first army corps they were the first to be engaged, and this one corps had to fight Hill and Longstreet's divisions, numbering 50,000 or 60,000, for several hours, without any assistance. But they nobly, heroically performed their full duty. Gen. Reynolds, their brigade commander, was killed at about the first fire. We are without advices as to the strength of the 104th at the time it went into battle. About two months ago it numbered about three hundred and fifty effective men. In all probability this number had been somewhat reduced since that time. On Thursday, the 2nd inst. all that could be mustered of the regiment were the Colonel, the Major, Quartermaster, one line officer, and about 40 privates. Col. Prey's horse was shot under him while commanding the brigade. Lt. Col. Tutbill was shot in the bowels, and is reported dead. The Adjutant is missing. We give below the list of casualties as reported in the N. Y. Times:—

WOUNDED.

Capt. Wiley, Springwater,
" Fisher,
Lieut. Greggs,
" Rose,
" Richardson,
" Dow,
" Kane.

MISSING.

Capt. Starr, Rochester,
Lieut. Weed,
" Lanson, Genesee,
" Snyder, Springwater,
" Starks,
" Tutbill, Nunda,
" Dixon, Livonia,
" Stevens,
" Dailey,
" Steele.

We hope before going to press to receive more definite intelligence as to the part the 104th had in the battle, and also as to the killed, wounded and missing.

ANOTHER BRAVE SOLDIER GONE.—Again we are called to record the death of another true and brave soldier. John Runyan, of Co. D, 104th Regiment, died in Hospital at Gettysburg, on the 18th inst., of wounds received on the 1st inst. His remains were brought home for interment by his brother, who is an Orderly in the same Co. In the first day's battle at Gettysburg the deceased was wounded by a minnie ball striking him near the left shoulder blade, and passing through both lungs came out on the right side. For over two weeks he appeared to be improving, and strong hopes were entertained of his recovery, when a cough set in and he rapidly failed. The deceased early enlisted with the Regiment, and had been with his Co. all the time, except for a brief period that he was a paroled prisoner, having been captured by the enemy at the second Bull Run battle. He was a true soldier, and fell when nobly performing his duty.

 Lt. Col. TUTBILL, (of Nunda, formerly of Corning,) of the 104th Regiment, was dangerously wounded in the hip, at the battle of Gettysburg and was taken prisoner, and for two days was in the hands of the rebels without medical aid. When the rebels fled he was found by our men and cared for. His wife went to Gettysburg on hearing of his being wounded, and is now taking care of him. He lost part of a hand at the battle of Antietam.

The 104th Regiment fought in the First Army Corps last week, and the 136th probably in the Eleventh. On Friday morning last, only Colonel Prey, Major Strong, and 40 men comprised the 104th Regiment, who answered to their names at roll call.

CASUALTIES IN THE 104th.

Lost, Capt. Wiley, Capt. Fisher, Lieut. Gregg, Lieut. Rose, Lieut. Richardson, Lieut. Dow, Lieut. Kane. All wounded. Capt. Starr, Lieut. Weed, Lieut. Lamson, Lieut. Snider, Lieut. Starks, Lieut. Tutthill, Lieut. Dickson, Lieut. Stevens, Lieut. Daily, Lieut. Steele, missing. Sergeant C. G. Burns, leg. Lieut. W. J. Starks, side. Sergt. Hugh St. Jermain, leg.

FROM THE ONE HUNDRED AND FOURTH REGIMENT.—The following is an extract from a letter written by the Chaplain of the 104th regiment, a few days since:

As to the 104th, we are in usual good health, our encampment taking the lead of all others in the corps for its wide streets, embowed walks and neat tents, the officers daily disciplining the men in marching and the use of arms—while the privates are ready to be faithful to each position and trust placed in their charge. At the late battles they were "in the front" exposed at each moment to destruction or capture, but escaping in a manner well nigh miraculous. We are now on the qui vive—all things ready to strike tents and march at a moment's notice—where and for what no one surmises. The balloon is often up to survey the opposite side of the river that we may not be surprised by a raid and that we may again cross if there is apparent hope of success. The weather four days since was extremely warm, but a chance for the better has just occurred. We dread the coming heat, and "eight days rations," and sixty rounds of ammunition, with etceteras too abundant and weighty for an American volunteer. But "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." We may remain as now for a month to come, accomplishing the important object of defending the Potomac and thus Washington. Though apparently doing nothing, we are as watchdogs at the door, ready to spring at the throat, if an intrusive step is made.

 Lt. Col. TUTTHILL of the 104th N. Y. Reg., who was dangerously wounded in the battle at Gettysburg, is slowly recovering. He arrived in this village last week Thursday. On the morning of that battle the Regiment mustered about 250 men. The next day but 45 men and one line officer could be mustered for service. The rest were killed, wounded or prisoners.

ONE HUNDRED AND FOURTH NEW YORK.

Lost—Capt. Wiley, Capt. Fisher, Lieut. Gregg, Lieut. Rose, Lieut. Richardson, Lieut. Dow, Lieut. Kane. All wounded. Missing—Capt. Starr, Lieut. Weed, Lieut. Lamson, Lieut. Snider, Lieut. Starks, Lieut. Tutthill, Lieut. Dickson, Lieut. Stevens, Lieut. Daily, Lieut. Steele.

From the 104th Regiment.

BATTLE FIELD, Gettysburg, Pa., }
July 2, 1863.

DEAR HENRY—I improve the earliest opportunity to inform you that we have just engaged the enemy at Gettysburg. The engagement commenced yesterday noon, and lasted until darkness compelled us to subside. Our Regiment, the Wadsworth Guards, were in the thickest of the fight, and are badly cut up. I am again a prisoner, with numerous officers. I write this on the ground, at day-break. The day has been rained, and heavy musket fight on. firing and cannonading is going on. We shall have an awful battle to-day. I have not time to write at length, but will append a list of the casualties in our Regiment:—

Our Brigadier General Paul, killed;
Lieut. Col. Tutbill seriously wounded in the side, and taken prisoner;
Capt. Wilson, prisoner;
Capt. Wiley, wounded in the hand;
Lieuts. Snyder and Rose, Adjutant Staff and Adam Dickinson, prisoners.

Killed—Peter F. Fuller, Alonzo A. Meix, John Lodwick, Truman Herrington.

Wounded—Wesley Lewis, slight in the arm, Jasper Jackman, twice in left shoulder blade, Albert Fiat, slight in leg, Corp. Ludbury, and probably others that I have not learned.

Prisoners—Jasper G. Jackman, Jerome B. Fisher, David G. Spears, Charles Willis.

Our colors fell twice, but the boys rallied and prevented their falling into the hands of the enemy.

Yours in haste,
J. B. FISHER.

Dear Mr. [unclear]
July 9, 1863

Our Army Correspondence.

Letter from the 104th Regiment.

PICKET LINE, NEAR EDWARD'S FERRY,
WEST BANK, POTOMAC, June 24, 1863.

DEAR SIR:—While sitting beneath an oaken copse enjoying the salubrious zephyrs of a sylvan frescade trans-Potomac on picket post, the thought occurred to my mind that I would contribute a few lines of information to your patrons. The 104th is engaged in the hazardous task of picketing in front of the enemy, though there is not an armed Reb. within ten miles as anybody "knows on." Still our belligerent obligations are as promptly "did up" as though they were demanded in proximity to the enemy. We have been doing up some pretty huge marching for the past two weeks.

We are nearly one hundred miles from our old camp near Fredericksburg, in the angle of northwest from the city of Washington. We have performed many forced marches, but never one that taxed the physical energies of the "Wadsworth Guards" "muscle," as did the one last performed. Voluntary dismissals, such as "French Leaves," obits and gutta percha furloughs, have reduced our Regiment down to the back bone and sinews of the remaining members. We have concluded to take the thing by the smooth handle, (i. e.) those of the same grade with me, viz: privates in the rear rank, though the official quorum demands a word in the of eulogy. I am happy to say they are to er than tripe and

st
R
gr
pe
St
L
M at la
C ce se ir
M te w
M
E
G
g in F
m
C
be cli
"C hi sy fa
S
h

rougher than a grater, and temperance is one of the marked features of character which grace their deportment. There is an old maxim, which says there is never a cause without an effect, and, vice versa, the scarcity of stimula may be the proper cause of this distinctive con of virtue, not ~~to~~ lo.

The 11th Massachusetts has just arrived for the purpose of relieving the 104th. We are now to return into camp. We march on the morrow, en route to Edward's Ferry for Maryland. "Old fighting Joe" has evidently changed his base of operations, and since "Johnny Reb," has dug out from Fredericksburg and gone for the South Mountain and Pennsylvania corn cribs, pork barrels, &c., we thought it expedient for us to cover their retreat, and thereby secure the safety of their exodus from Fredericksburg.

—Well, I will now resume my pen, and for fear you may not readily perceive the cause of my inserting the above symbol of punctuation, I will manifest it. It denotes a sudden stop or change of subject, (i. e.) I was obliged to defer writing and fall into line with my "Remington" and knapsack on my back.

We have been marching for three days. We are now in Maryland; in Middletown, Frederick county, Maryland. We have witnessed very fine representations of vegetation. Everything appears promising.

Well, our old bugle has blown again, and we must be off towards Pennsylvania. I must defer, and strike tents. The Regiment is in a flourishing condition. I will write again at leisure. Yours in haste,

JEROME B. FISHER,
Co. D, 104th N. Y. S. V.

Our Army Correspondence.

Letter from the 104th Regiment.

PICKET LINE, NEAR EDWARD'S FERRY,
WEST BANK, POTOMAC, June 24, 1863.

DEAR SIR :—While sitting beneath an osken copse enjoying the salubrious zephyrs of a sylvan frescade trans-Potomac on picket post, the thought occurred to my mind that I would contribute a few lines of information to your patrons. The 104th is engaged in the hazardous task of picketing in front of the enemy, though there is not an armed Reb. within ten miles as anybody "knows on." Still our belligerent obligations are as promptly "did up" as though they were demanded in proximity to the enemy. We have been doing up some pretty huge matching for the past two weeks.

We are nearly one hundred miles from our old camp near Fredericksburg, in the angle of northwest from the city of Washington. We have performed many forced marches, but never one that taxed the physical energies of the "Wadsworth Guards" "muscle," as did the one last performed. Voluntary dismissals, such as "French Leaves," obits and gutta percha friaroughs, have reduced our Regiment down to the back bone and sinews of the remaining members. We have concluded to take the thing by the smooth handle, (i. e.) those of the same grade with me, viz : privates in the rear rank, though the official enourage demands a word in the way of eulogy. I am happy to say they are tougher than tripe and rougher than a grater, and temperance is one of the marked features of character which grace their deportment. There is an old maxim, which says there is never a cause without an effect, and, vice versa, the scarcity of stimula may be the proper cause of this distinctive con of virtue, not in toto.

The 11th Massachusetts has just arrived for the purpose of relieving the 104th. We are now to return into camp. We march on the morrow, en route to Edward's Ferry for Maryland. "Old fighting Joe" has evidently changed his base of operations, and since "Johnny Reb." has dug out from Fredericksburg and gone for the South Mountain and Pennsylvania corn cribs, pork barrels, &c., we thought it expedient for us to cover their retreat, and thereby secure the safety of their exodus from Fredericksburg.

—Well, I will now resume my pen, and for fear you may not readily perceive the cause of my inserting the above symbol of punctuation, I will manifest it. It denotes a sudden stop or change of subject, (i. e.) I was obliged to defer writing and fall into line with my "Remington" and knapsack on my back.

We have been marching for three days. We are now in Maryland; in Middletown, Frederick county, Maryland. We have witnessed very fine representations of vegetation. Everything appears promising.

Well, our old bugle has blown again, and we must be off towards Pennsylvania. I must defer, and strike tents. The Regiment is in a flourishing condition. I will write again at leisure. Yours in haste,

JEROME B. FISHER,
Co. B, 104th N. Y. S. V.

Our Army Correspondence.

The Late Battle—104th N. Y. S. V.

WHITE CHURCH FARM HOSPITAL OF 'D D Y. }
FIRST CORPS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. }
Wednesday, July 15th, 1862. }

Mr. Editor:—I have delayed communicating to you the results of the late battle in order to greater correctness of statement. Waiving all account of the engagement itself, I would notice briefly the position of officers and privates of the 104th. Col. Prev. Major Strang, Dr. Ruggs and Lieut. Mc Connely are the only officers with the Regiment, which contains but 40 privates. Quartermaster Colt is with his train. Lieut. Col. Tutbill has a serious, though we hope not dangerous wound. He is at Gettysburg, and will go to his home at Corning so soon as possible. Adj. Still is a paroled prisoner and at his home near you. His health has not been good for two months past. Dr. Chase is Brigade operative Surgeon. Dr. Richmond and myself are on detached service at this Hospital and that at Gettysburg. Captains Wiley and Fisher and Lieut. Starr are wounded, though not severely; all have returned home. Captains Starr and Willson are prisoners en route to Richmond. Lieut's Weed, Lamson, Snyder, Tutbill, Rose, Dixon, Stephens, Daily and Carr, are supposed to be prisoners of war. Lieut. Thomas Johnston of

3
Mo
ter the of tic
C h si le of ie
ie
sel qu
m cei an
P
tic
A 2
of w fo
th
of
at
lo

off-til-d valor. was killed by a ball through the lungs. Lieuts. Dow, of York, and Richardson, Stark and Greggs are wounded.— Lieut. Trembly, severely wounded at Bull Run, has but lately rejoined the Regiment, and though not in active military service, is doing much good to the wounded. Lieut. Kenny is on the staff of Gen. Paul, who is severely wounded by a ball passing through each eye.

Color Sergeants Buckingham and Shea were badly wounded—the former losing a leg also Sergeants Lefferts, mortally in face—having lost a leg—Wylie, Gearhart, Harris, Shea, Pierce, Foster, Culver, Cutler, Carr, Curtis and H. German, with Corporals Powers, Stanton, udburg, Cunningham, Tiple, and Baker, in the Hospitals at Getysburg; and here I have seen Privates A. Lewis, P. Collier, A. Sailer, D. Rich, S. Austin, J. Roberts, E. G. Washburne, J. P. Wells, F. Shea, A. H. Peabody, J. Nubfang, G. Chick, M. McGee, W. Hind, P. Gamy, M. Flynn, J. Faucher, E. Whipple, S. Streeter, J. B. W. Jock, W. Wetnam, J. Woodright, W. Singleton, G. Laudwick, H. E. Harlburt, A. True, B. Cannon, A. Hught, J. Sweeny, J. W. Barr, N. Wallace, P. Clark, M. Maxson, N. Peaswick, and A. Pratt, with many missing, most of them will, by God's blessing, recover, though not all.

In collecting the names of deceased soldiers, I have aimed at great correctness, knowing the painfulness of a false name. I have just returned from the Hospital. While there I asked the inmates to give me the names of those who, to their and his knowledge, died on the field, or subsequently, as the result of wounds. They gave me these, (many more, alas! to be added.)

- Thomas L. Johnston, Lieutenant.
- S. J. Curtis, Sergeant.
- Owens, Private.
- William Woodruff, Private.
- S. W. Lewis, " "
- John Godwick, " "
- L. E. Mix, " "
- Warren Yezie, " "
- Samuel Lewis, " "
- H. Burgess, " "
- O. J. Parry, " "
- James True, " "
- Charles Fisher, " "
- R. Galucha, " "
- S. M. Peckett, " "

This catalogue will be painfully enlarged as time passes on.

It will be observed that the loss of officers is specially great. In due time there will be a thorough re-organization, if not consolidation, of the Regiment.

The Hospital here established is under the official control of Dr. Chambers, assisted by Drs. Richmond, Dohy and Wheeler. Too much cannot be said in praise of their skill in many intricate operations, and of attention shown by themselves and nurses to scores of wounded soldiers. Messrs. Wilson, Washburne, Lindsey and Hamilton are attentive as usual at all hours. About fifty Confederates have been under their charge, and received all needful service. The deaths have, of course, been many. A part of my detached duty has been to bury the dead. Yesterday I conducted the burial of five persons, (two Union and three Confederate,) at the same time, in low ground. (Some of the names of the were fear, a prisoner at Richmond. He was sick at Culpepper. Capts. Latimore and Wiley, with Lieuts. Runyon and Losier were discharged last week on a Surgeon's certificate, and a furlough given to Capt. Fry. Lieuts. Rudd and McCaffrey were killed at the battle of Bull Run. Capt. Kelly was killed and Capt. Tuthill badly wounded at the terrible fight of Wednesday last. Other Captains and Lieutenants will hardly be allowed to take their places again for various reasons. Of the privates large numbers are dead on the battle field. Scores are in the hospitals sick and wounded; so that a regiment which commanded the admiration of the citizens of Washington but eight months since is less than half officered, and has but about two hundred and fifty effective men. And what is the cause? Over marching and the irregularities and deficiency of food. Not long since the regiment reached the end of a march with forty men! Put upon a lad of 19 between 60 and 70 pounds weight—place him in the ranks with little or no breakfast—make him walk twenty miles with but the briefest pauses to rest, and what will soon become of him? Just what is becoming of our whole army. You are startled at the North when hearing that five or eight thousand were killed and wounded in a battle; but what is that to the thousands in the hospitals sick unto death from fevers and other ailments, the result of an over fatigue and lack of food. I speak of what I know and not with half the warmth to which the subject is entitled. The 104th is in as good condition as any regiment in the division, and yet what a mere handful of officers and men—some dead—some wounded, but far more sick and disabled through over work and over fatigue.

What there was of them did, in the main, do their duty manfully on Wednesday last, (one of the most terrible battles ever fought on this continent or any other.) A few played the coward; but not their noble leader, Major Skinner, and not that brave young officer, Lieut. Starr, who added another laurel to his well earned crown; and not Capt. Kelly, who fell dead from the bullet of the enemy; and not Capt. Tuthill, (severely wounded,) and Capt. Wing, and Capt. Wiley, with several Lieutenants who illustrated their fitness for the position they held. I have just learned the 104th lost in the Waterloo engagement of Wednesday—killed, 9; wounded, 67; missing, 16. Of the first I have obtained the name of Capt. Kelly only; among the wounded of Capt. Tuthill, and Lieuts. Dew and Wilson. Lieut. Trembly, wounded at Bull Run, is convalescent. Henry Lamson, of Genesee, is at Fairfax Seminary. I regret not to see him. He will probably recover. Some 400 wounded soldiers were brought in yesterday and are at the capital. 200 or so are at the Patent Office. Cities and villages in this region are filled with the wounded and sick.

The enemy are across the Potomac and McClellan is after them with a large force. We look for the fall of Richmond, but not without fearful slaughter. The battle of Wednesday was not decisive. While the advantage is deemed to be on our side, it was too much of a "drawn game" to be altogether satisfactory. At least so it is viewed in this quarter. Our loss of officers is sad. We can ill afford to lose such commanders as Gens. Manfield, Reno, Kearney and perhaps Hooker.

The end; the end; when and how will it be? God grant that it may speedily arrive in our favor.

EX-CHAPLAIN
Of the 104th N. Y. S. V.

ready for internment. Had seen... I have time, strength, nor been to recall and narrate what I have seen during the last two weeks.
 Oh, what weariness, exhaustion of body and spirit! The end is near. Another fearful battle is ahead, if not already waging.
 The remnant of the 104th form part of the "line of battle," now said to be facing the foe.
 May God protect those noble men. Ere long
 I will write you at more length.

P. S. I met Geo. Hall at Gettysburg. He is attending John Parry, and in other ways rendering himself useful.

The 104th Regiment.

This regiment suffered severely in the battle of Wednesday of last week. Being in the first army corps they were the first to be engaged, and this one corps had to fight Hill and Longstreet's divisions, numbering 50,000 or 60,000, for several hours, without any assistance.
 But they nobly, heroically performed their full duty. Gen. Reynolds, their brigade commander, was killed at about the first fire. We are without advices as to the strength of the 104th at the time it went into battle. About two months ago it numbered about three hundred and fifty effective men. In all probability this number had been somewhat reduced since that time.
 On Thursday, the 2nd inst., all that could be mustered of the regiment were the Colonel, the Major, Quartermaster, one line officer, and about 40 privates. Col. Frey's horse was shot under him while commanding the brigade. Lt. Col.
 Tutbill was shot in the bowels, and is reported dead. The Adjutant is missing. We give below the list of casualties as reported in the N. Y. Times:

- WOUNDED.
- Capt. Wiley, Springwater,
 - Fisher,
 - Lieut. Greggs,
 - " Rose,
 - " Richardson,
 - " Dow,
 - " Kane.
- MISSING.
- Capt. Starr, Rochester,
 - Lieut. Weed,
 - " Lamson, Geneseo,
 - " Snyder, Springwater,
 - " Starks,
 - " Tutbill, Nunda,
 - " Dixon, Livonia,
 - " Stevens,
 - " Dailey,
 - " Steele.

We hope before going to press to receive more definite intelligence as to the part the 104th had in the battle, and also as to the killed, wounded and missing.

Letter from the Chaplain of the 104th.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20, 1862.

Mr. Editor: Among your many readers I am allowed to recognize not a small number of personal and esteemed friends. For their sakes I ask the indulgence of a few personalities, preliminary to matters of more general interest and importance.

About two weeks ago I very unexpectedly found myself in this city, en route to my regiment, from which I had become separated at Fairfax C. H., Va.
 So soon as my Colonel and his attending Surgeon saw me they insisted that I do not leave the house for the present. Time passed on. The effect of the long marches I had taken, sleeping on the ground, excitement of the battle field, appeared in a form of fever of the most obstinate and debilitating character. But an officer must be with his regiment or have a certificate from an appointed surgeon.
 Two had freely expressed their opinions in my case;
 but I was sent to the highest in authority, who told me, after the briefest conversation, that he could not give me leave to remain here, nor could he give me a furlough; for neither of them would meet my case. There was but one course for him conscientiously to pursue. He took his pen and wrote a recommendation for a discharge on account of physical disability to meet army fatigues. It received the immediate signature of Gen. Halleck.
 Much to my regret (so far as it is right even to have a thought or wish in opposition to the Divine will) and greatly to my surprise, I am no longer a Chaplain. My coming was an experiment.
 I determined that if a Chaplain, I would be one with all my might:—hence, I became one with the men; walked and talked with them; slept as they slept, and participated in all their exposures.
 But it was too much for me. I do not at all regret coming into the army. Delightful are the acquaintances
 I have formed, and I know what it is to be a soldier. I have been one myself—in the field, marching and fighting, fatigued and fainting.
 It was no choice of mine to leave the service;
 but they who had the determination of these questions, said "retire," and I reluctantly obeyed.
 The three surgeons who passed on my case were most courteous, but very decided. My Colonel gave a written, though "reluctant opinion" in the same direction. My intercourse with the officers and men has been most intimate and agreeable. I have no higher wish for my successor than that he receive as cordial a welcome and enjoy as kind attention as felt to my favored lot.

And now to matters of more importance to the public. Great changes have taken place in the 104th (Wadsworth Guards) since I joined it, two months since. Let me notice some of them.
 Col. Rerbach, after a residence here as an invalid for five weeks, has gone home on furlough. His return is very questionable.
 Lieut. Col. Kenyon has left the service under a cloud. Adjutant

A Visit to the Pennsylvania Battle-Field

Casualties among Our Volunteers.

FIRST ARMY CORPS, HOSPITAL.—Camp near Gettysburg, Pa., July 9th, 1863.

EDITOR HERALD:—I arrived in Washington
 a week ago this morning, after three days uncertain journeying via Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and by two days more busy trying, secured a War Department Pass to reach the Army of the Potomac; but my ob-just being not so much to reach the Army as the wounded, I found it necessary to get another pass from Gen. Schenck, at Baltimore. This took another day, and I got here Monday evening. I find our 104th Regiment like all in this corps, terribly cut up, having done the principal part of Wednesday's fighting, and been in all the later fighting on the left, which was very severe on Thursday evening, and most of the day on Friday. I have visited the 11th and 3d corps Hospitals, but do not find them so badly destroyed as the 1st, although their losses are terrible indeed. Especially the 3d, where the wounds so far as I have visited, are more severe than those of the 11th. I think in them all, the killed in proportion to the wounded is smaller than usual. We have many of the rebel wounded among us, who are much more horribly mangled than ours. I judge this may be partly from their removing many of theirs, leaving only the worst cases, and partly from the greater supply, and more effectiveness of our ammunition. If we only have their "worst cases," and they are at all in proportion to ours, the number here tell an awful tale of their whole loss.

I have stolen as much time as I could feel like doing, from the duties that press upon every working man on all sides, to visit the field. These scenes have been so often described, I will not attempt any details of its horrors. It is enough for me to tell you that here is a line of battle extending eight miles, nearly every foot of the whole distance marked by all the usual indications of a fight desperate and sanguinary as any on record.

I give you a list of casualties in the companies of several Regiments which I have visited, that belong near Danville. The list may be subject to some changes on further information, but I have been very particular. I have seen most of the wounded myself, and learn the rest from parties who had seen them.

- 104th Reg't, Co. B.—Capt. Wiley, Springwater.
- Killed—Private J. Lodwich, July 1st.
 - " S. W. Lewis, "
 - " Alonzo F. Mix, "
 - Wounded—Capt. H. A. Wiley, severely in right hand—left for home yesterday.
 - Second Lieut. W. J. Starks, slightly; gone home.
 - 1st Sergeant, H. St. Germain, in thigh, badly.
 - 3rd Serg't. J. Cullum, "
 - Corporal Mark Ludbury in thigh, ball in yet, but doing well.
 - Private A. H. Feabody, in calf of right leg.
 - Missing G., L. Snyder missed in Wednesday's fight; some hopes are entertained, that he was taken prisoner.
 - Sergeant C. C. Barnes.
 - Corporal J. B. Butler.
 - " J. H. Scott.
 - Privates L. R. Campbell.
 - " J. M. Cavener.
 - " P. F. Fuller.
 - " T. Harrington.
 - " J. G. Jackman.
 - " J. McFail, and H. W. Piatt since found wounded in groin.
 - Prisoners, D. C. Speer.
 - " C. Willis.

- 104th Regiment, Company E.
- Wounded—1st Serg't Joshua Culver, ^{2d} ₁₀ wound in thigh.
 - 2d Serg't H. S. Foster, foot since ^{1st} ₁₀
 - 3d " H. N. Curtiss, head ^{1st} ₁₀ doing well.

Local Affairs.

UNION PRISONERS IN RICHMOND—CAPTS. KENNEDY AND McEWEN AND LIEUTS. O'BRIEN, McOLEARY, RODGERS AND REQUA AMONG THE NUMBER.—For the following interesting document we are indebted to John Daley, Capt. I Co., 104th Regiment New York Vols., who is now a prisoner at Richmond. Capt. Daley was formerly one of the Assistant Engineers of our Fire Department, and is well known in this city. A large number of the non-commissioned officers and privates of his company were captured with him:—

LIBBY PRISON, RICHMOND, Va., }
August 31, 1864. }

"MR. H. J. HASTINGS—Sir: Will you inform the friends (through the Editor) of Capt. James Kennedy and Lieuts. Daniel O'Brien and McCleary that they are wounded and prisoners, and are now in Libby Prison Hospital. I had the pleasure of a shake hands from them this morning. McCleary is walking around the hospital, and Kennedy and O'Brien, the Doctor says, will be running around in a week or two. All three are in good spirits. Lieuts. H. Rodgers and J. Requa, and Capt. J. McEwen, are here and in good health. Also the following (to be copied by the Troy Times) list of enlisted men belonging to Co. I, 104th Regiment N. Y. Vols., captured August 19th:—

- Sergts. Daniel Liddy, Patrick Casey, Michael A. Malloy; Corps. Thomas Gregg, James Murphy; Privates P. Offord, P. Callahan, J. Chambers, B. Compton, J. Calden, J. Dwyer, N. Green, L. Harrington, J. Kirby, G. King, M. Kelly, D. Kelly, J. Law, O. Lane, and G. H. Moray.

"They are all well. Yours, &c.,
JOHN DALEY,
Capt. Co. I, 104th Regt. N. Y. V."

Lieut. McCleary resided in West Troy. In the battle of Cold Harbor, Aug. 31, he received three wounds, and it was supposed he was killed. He was captured by the rebels. This fact was not known, however, until the 4th of July, when it was ascertained that he was a prisoner. He is still at Libby Prison.

Many thanks for the Union. To no one is it more welcome than to the

CHAPLAIN OF 104TH.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 22.
Democrat & American.

On the Death of Robert S. McMahon, Son of Capt. John McMahon.

For the Democrat and American.

The good Shepherd looked through the lambs of His fold,
He wanted one more for His pasture above;
Another to play by the river of gold,
Another to sport in the light of His love.

He saw His flocks roam in the deserts of earth, [one—
And said, with a smile, from these flocks I'll choose
One shall ascend from the clouds and the dearth,
And shall live on in light, its glory begun.

So He stooped from the throne of His heavenly bliss,
And pressed to His brow its own crown—thorn;
His own cup of woe the poor lamb must kiss,
And touch the sad cross its Savior had borne.

Oh! mother, He hears thy sad wail of woe,
He needs thy hot tears, the lone captive's sighing,
And He rends the dark veil His mercy to show,
And points out the bliss, whose gate we call—dying.

He shows thy dear lamb crowned with lilies of glory,
The chalice of death changed for fountains of love;
The cross buds with palm leaves, all conflicts have ceased,
Songs of triumph resound through the glory above.

Samuel Lewis, of York, belonging to the 104th Regiment, was killed in the first day's fight at Gettysburg. We have been furnished with the following respecting the deceased:

He fell among the rebels, and as you are aware, Gen. Meade allowed no flag of truce lest the foe should escape. And I assure you of my most sincere and fervent sympathy with you in this sad event. Samuel was a youth of great amiability of disposition—high integrity —most exemplary diligence and attention to his military duties—and undimmed fortitude.
He did not seem to know what fear is. At Chancellorsville he was brave, itself. But his military life has seen an untimely close. He is an added victim at the throne of this most unrighteous rebellion—another offering upon the altar of the nation's honor.

A Paroled Prisoner from Gettysburg.

Maj. Stull of the 104th (Geneseo) regiment reached home yesterday, having been captured and paroled on the field of Gettysburg by Gen.
Lee. Maj. Stull was in the fight of the first day, Wednesday, when we suffered our only repulse and greatest ~~repulse~~ loss. He states that when he was prisoner not less than 4,000 of the federal ~~army~~ were in the hands of the enemy.
He and other officers were retained during the fight of the succeeding days and then paroled.
The report of recapture of prisoners by Meade doubtless referred to this 4,000. Maj. Stull represents the rebels as well dressed and in good condition every way, fighting desperately and determined to conquer or die. He says they were husbanding their supplies and living with an eye to the possibility of finding themselves short of rations.

104TH REGIMENT.

Sergeant C. C. Burns, Co. B, 104th New York, leg.

Capt. H. A. Wiley, Co. B, 104th New York, shoulder.

Lieut. W. J. Starks, Co. B, 104th New York, side.

Sergeant Hugh St. Germain, Co. B, 104th New York, leg.

Capt. Fisher, Lieut. Gregg, Lieut. Rose,
Lieut. Richardson, Lieut. Dow, Lieut. Kane,
all wounded. Missing—Capt. Starr, Lieut. Weed, Lieut. Lamson, Lieut. Snider, Lieut. Starks,
Lieut. Tuthill, Lieut. Dickson, Lieut. Stevens,
Lieut. Daily, Lieut. Steele.

CASUALTIES AMONG OUR VOLUNTEERS.—The 104th Reg't, "Wadsworth Guards," was in the front in the opening fight at Gettysburg, on Wednesday, and their loss was heavy. The Times gives the following list of casualties to officers:

Capt. Wiley, Capt. Fisher, Lieut. Gregg, Lieut. Rose, Lieut. Richardson, Lieut. Dow, Lieut. Kane; all wounded. Capt. Starr, Lieut. Weed, Lieut. Lamson, Lieut. Snider, Lieut. Sparks, Lieut. Tuthill, Lieut. Dickson, Lieut. Stevens, Lieut. Daily, Lieut. Steele, missing.

We understand a dispatch has been received, stating that I. W. Drake, of the 136th, is a prisoner in the hands of the rebels.

Capt. John W. Shafer, of the Illinois Volunteers, (son of Mr. Jacob Shafer, of Sparta,) was wounded in the arm. We have heard of no further casualties among the volunteers from this vicinity.

WOUNDED.—The news is confirmed that Lieut. W. J. Starks, of the One Hundred and Fourth regiment, was wounded in the side, at Gettysburg. He is a well-known and highly respected young man—a son of Rev. D. Starks.

POCKET PICKED.—David Thompson, of Green Island, was robbed of $20—a check of $12 on the Farmers' Bank, and $8 in money—while viewing the procession in Oakwood Cemetery on the occasion of Col. Willard's funeral.

THE 104TH REGIMENT.—Among the casualties of the late battle in the 104th—Livingston Co. Regiment—reported are the following:
Sergeant C. C. Burns, Co. B, 104th New York, leg.
Captain H. A. Wiley, Co. B, 104th New York, shoulder.
Lieutenant W. J. Starks, Co. B, 104th New York, side.
Sergeant Hugh St. Jermain, Co. B, 104th New York, leg.

CAPT. GEORGE H. STARR. of the 104th New York Volunteers, and a brother of the Rev. Frederick Starr of this village, was taken prisoner by the rebels at Gettysburg.

The remains of Lieut. Thomas Johnson, of the 104th Regiment, arrived at Troy yesterday morning, and the funeral will take place Wednesday.—Gen. Duryea, (says the Troy Whig,) who, in many battles, commanded the brigade to which the regiment of Lieut. Johnson was attached, visited this city on Friday last, for the express purpose of condoling with the parents of deceased, and recounting to them the various acts of bravery which Lieut. J. performed in the service of his country. On one occasion, he stated, (at South Mountain,) a battery which had done deadly execution in the Union ranks, had to be silenced. A call was made on the 104th to perform the perilous undertaking, and Lt. Johnson, said Gen. Duryea, was the first officer that stepped forward and volunteered to charge on the enemy's guns.

LIEUT. E. E. STILL.—We are pleased to learn that this gallant and meritorious young officer was not killed, as was supposed, at the battle of Dallas. On Saturday last his father received a letter from him, from which we give an extract:

OFFICER'S PRISON, MACON, GA. }
SUNDAY, May 29, 1864. }

DEAR FATHER,—You will doubtless have heard that I was missing in the Dallas fight before this reaches you. I was captured on the evening of Wednesday, 25th inst. I reached this place yesterday. My health is good. Our quarters are quite comfortable. On arriving here I met Captain Dixon, of the 104th N. Y., Lieut. Drake, of the 136th, and Lieut. Lamson, of Genesee, of the 104th, and several other acquaintances. The weather is not excessively warm, and we have good running water for drinking and bathing purposes. The officers mentioned are all well. Address me as a prisoner of war, Macon, but write nothing about military matters.

The above intelligence will be a relief not only to the Dr. and his family, but to a host of friends throughout the County, who know Lieut. S. as a competent and fearless officer. He early enlisted in the war, and by his faithfulness to duty and courage won his way to promotion. It is to be hoped that he and the others named may not remain much longer prisoners of war. Capt. Dixon and Lieut. Drake and Lamson were captured at Gettysburg in July, 1862.

The Wounded in Washington Hospitals.

The Washington Chronicle of Tuesday publishes the following additional names of wounded, who have arrived there and are now in Hospital.

MT. PLEASANT HOSPITAL.

- Darrian A. Graham, Co. D, 4th New York Artillery.
- David Canfield, D, 4th N. Y. Artillery.
- Wm. H. Wirtz, F, 108th N. Y.
- Chas. H. Watson, A, 104th N. Y.
- John Muldon, A, 76th N. Y.
- Chas. Burgess, E, 24th N. Y. Cav.
- Robert Chambers, E, 76th N. Y.
- P. S. Weber, I, 76th N. Y.
- Patrick Tierney, B, 104th N. Y.
- H. A. Griow, 8th N. Y. Artillery.
- John Robinson, A, 104th N. Y.
- Joseph Casner, B, 140th N. Y.
- George R. Hutchinson, M, 8th Artillery.
- Thalman Horton, F, 104th N. Y.
- Wm. Gage, K, 104th N. Y.
- Chas. Davenport, C, 140th N. Y.
- Joseph Leaney, D, 104th N. Y.
- John Snyder, G, 140th N. Y.
- Sergt. Wm. Jauncey, G, 67th N. Y.
- Henry Buck, D, 104th N. Y.
- Daniel D. Mann, B, 104th N. Y.
- D. E. Cornwall, B, 104th N. Y.
- Alex. Martin, H, 14th N. Y. Artillery.
- Corp. D. A. Beardstey, D, 14th N. Y. Art.
- John Emrick, B, 14th N. Y. Art.
- Michael Bloss, C, 8th N. Y. Art.
- Sergt. Peter Miller, C, 9th N. Y. Art.
- Wm. Gerow, C, 9th N. Y. Art.

COLUMBIAN HOSPITAL.

- C. B. Fenner, Co. L, 4th N. Y. Artillery.
- Rich. Bennet, G, 14th N. Y. Art.
- Theo. C. Armitage, C, 11th N. Y.
- Chauncey Miller, B, 11th N. Y.
- Oliver N. Helmer, B, 11th N. Y.
- George W. Carpenter, K, 9th N. Y. Heavy Artillery.

Correspondence of the Union and Advertiser.
104th N. Y. S. Volunteers.

RAPPAHANNOCK, Aug. 12, 1863.

MR. EDITOR:—Editors and correspondents of the Washington Chronicle, New York Herald, &c., inform their readers that the army of the Potomac is to do no marching and fighting for the present. Glad intelligence if true. But is it so? These writers may have means of ascertaining plans and purposes which we in medias res have not. It is to be hoped they have, and that they are not deluding us with an expectation joyous but deceptive.

The weather is very warm—too warm to allow of marching with safety to life, waiving all considerations of comfort. The 1st corps has been sadly reduced in numbers by the late battles and needs to be reinforced before taking the field. We have a pleasant encampment and one of practical importance as keeping watch over the railroad bridge which has been rebuilt since our arrival. We will make our lowest and most grateful obeisance to the "powers that be" if they will allow us to rest for one month. But if they will not permit us this privilege but one thing remains, and that is to "stake our tents and march away." This we did a year since and can again, though not, alas! with the same persons.

Last Sabbath was the anniversary of the battle of Cedar Mountain—then followed an approach to the Rapidan and hasty retreat to the Rappahannock (where we now are;) thence to Thoroughfare Gap, and then Bull Run (2,) Chantilly, Antietam, South Mountain, Fredericksburg, winter quarters at Belle Plaine, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and our olden locality. Let those who talk and write of the 104th N. Y. S. V. follow its footsteps during the past twelvemonth and then charge upon its idleness. And what are the results? First, to the army itself. Gens. Pope, McDowell, McClellan, Burnside, Hooker, have had their day, with Meade now in command, from whom much is expected, and through whom much will, we trust, be realized. Second, to the regiment. The 930 who passed through Washington sixteen months ago, are reduced to less than 90! And where are the absent ones? At Gettysburg 25 officers and privates were killed; 86 wounded; 94 prisoners and missing. Total, 205. At Bull Run, Antietam and Fredericksburg this "cruel war" found victims from among us. A letter just in from Capt. Geo. Starr, of your city, now a prisoner at Libby Prison, Richmond, informs us that nine of the 104th are confined there—the prospect of an exchange at present not being favorable.

The regiment is at present in command of Col. Frey, Captain and Acting Adjutant Van Dresser, Lieuts. McConnell, Trembley and Richardson, who, with Quartermaster Colt and Dr. Rugg and the Chaplain, constitute the entire field, staff and line force. Nor is this an isolate case. The 16th Maine and 13th Massachusetts, in our brigade, are in no better condition. If the war is to be prosecuted with any hope of success, there must be large reinforcements, and that speedily. Major Straug and other officers of our regiment are at Elmira detailed to look after our interests when the conscripts arrive. A better selection could not have been made. Lieut. Col. Tutthill is at his home in Corning, wounded, as are Capt. Wylie and Fisher, and Lieut. D. W. Starke at theirs. My amiable friend, Lieut. Thos. Johnston, of Troy, has "slept the sleep that knows no waking." If the 104th is not entitled to the